

Sky pirates strike in East, West

Combined News Service

NEW ORLEANS, La. — A cool, calculating gunman hijacked an Eastern Air Lines passenger jet from Pennsylvania to Washington and then to New Orleans Friday, then demanded another plane after running into what the airline said was mechanical problems.

The hijacker demanded — and received — parachutes and $303,000 in large bills in exchange for the lives of the 49 persons aboard.

As the hijacker held a crew of six at gunpoint in New Orleans, another plane was towed onto the runway.

The Boeing 727 Whisperjet he commandeered some 14 hours earlier in Pennsylvania remained parked near the end of the main runway at New Orleans International Airport, disabled by what the airline called hydraulic problems.

FBI agents armed with high-powered rifles followed the hijacked Eastern Airline 727 from Dulles International Airport to New Orleans, landing about an hour later.

All conversations between the hijacked plane and the airport tower in New Orleans were relayed through a second plane on the landing strip.

A hijacked Western Airlines jet refueled at Dallas late Friday for a flight to Cuba after winging out of Los Angeles International Airport where the tall, stocky gunman who had commandeered the plane released 11 passengers and abandoned his demands to be taken to Hanoi.

Two hours of negotiations at International Airport gained the release of the 11 passengers. The other 64 and six crew members were held captive aboard and flew on with the hijacker on a heading that would take the Boeing 737 twinjet to Dallas, Tampa, Fla., and Havana.

The plane was seized shortly after takeoff at Salt Lake City at 4:17 p.m., PDT. The passengers set free during the 2-hour, 13-minute refueling stop at Los Angeles — principally women and children — said the hijacker presented a note to the pilot, Capt. Gary L. Harding of Burbank, demanding to be flown to Hanoi. He later agreed to change the destination to Cuba after being told the plane lacked the range for long over-the-ocean flights.

Reds mass near city

Attack on Hue looms

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops attacked two government positions only seven miles from Hue Friday and were believed to be grouping for a major attack against the city, the country's third largest.

In neighboring Cambodia, Communists shelled downtown Phnom Penh and coordinated the barrage with a ground attack against a key bridge only one mile from the U.S. Embassy. Rockets reportedly hit two American homes but there were no U.S. casualties reported.

The attack in Phnom

Penh was the first Communist move against a major city in Southeast Asia since the Cambodian capital was shelled March 21, nine days before the current Communist offensive began in South Vietnam.

The March 21 attack against Phnom Penh killed 112 persons and wounded 223 others.

However, North Vietnamese troops are believed to be gathering for an attack against Hue, the former imperial capital and northernmost of South Vietnam's major cities.

North Vietnamese troops attacked two positions near Artillery Base Birmingham, five miles southwest of Hue. A military spokesman said 39 Communists and two South Vietnamese troops were killed and 11 government troops were wounded in two fights.

UPI correspondent Kate Webb reported from Phnom Penh that about 50 122mm rockets crashed into downtown Phnom Penh and into the city's airport on the outskirts.

She said 200-300 Communist troops attacked a bridge on Highway 1 linking Phnom Penh with Saigon. Communists already control more than 60 miles of the highway in Cambodia.

She said the Communists were believed to have been driven back by three battalions of government troops which were rushed to the area.

The bridge is only one mile from the U.S. Embassy. U.S. Marines were called out to guard the structure but there was no attack against the building.

Reports said earlier that the U.S. command had brought in a new antitank weapon to try to stop the Communist offensive in South Vietnam.

Field reports from South Vietnam said the United States is now using helicopters equipped with new guided antitank missiles against Communist vehicles. An American military spokesman said the new weapons were needed to provide additional protection for U.S. troops.

At the same time, a team of five generals and admirals from Washington began touring the battle zones to see what other so-

New Kissinger trip to Paris revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Henry Kissinger met secretly in Paris with North Vietnamese representatives Tuesday but made no headway in peace negotiations, the White House confirmed Friday.

Responding to disclosure of the trip by the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said President Nixon's top foreign policy adviser did indeed make the undisclosed journey.

Other Washington officials said Kissinger discussed the Vietnam situation in terms of Nixon's eight-point military-political settlement plan of Jan. 25, but that he received no encouragement from the North Vietnamese.

However, U.S. officials were described as not discouraged by the outcome, and not disposed to regard the talks as permanently ruptured. It was believed possible that Kissinger might return to Paris later, perhaps when the current Communist offensive in South Vietnam ends.

Ziegler chastized North Vietnam for what he called another example of "bad faith" in publicizing the latest Kissinger trip. He said the United States had proposed publicizing the fact the meeting took place but withholding its contents. North Vietnam requested that nothing be publicized, "and we agreed," Ziegler said.

Despite the lack of progress from the trip, Ziegler said the United States remained "ready to talk in any channel if they are ready to talk seriously."

Because of Kissinger's increasingly frequent secret journeys to meet with

Hits easy abortions, limit on births

Nixon rejects population curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Friday rejected major recommendations of his population commission, particularly those on abortion-on-request, unrestricted distribution of family planning services and supplying of contraceptive devices to minors.

"Such measures would do nothing to preserve and strengthen close family relationships," the President said in a statement.

He met afterwards with John D. Rockefeller III, chairman of the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future. The commission in March completed a two-year study on population patterns.

It recommended that the nation's growth rate be reduced to zero — a point where births equal deaths — and to accomplish this that abortion laws be eased and that sex education and fertility control be made available to people of all ages.

"While I do not plan to comment extensively on the contents and recommendations of the report," the President's statement said, "I do feel it is important that the public know my views on some of the issues raised.

"In particular I want to reaffirm and re-emphasize that I do not support unrestricted abortion policies. I consider abortion an unacceptable form of population control. In my judgment, unrestricted abortion policies would demean human life.

"I also want to make it clear that I do not support the unrestricted distribution of family planning services and devices to minors."

The commission had advocated abortion on request with the admonition that it not be considered the primary means of fertility control. The commission also recommended that families be encouraged to have only two children.

Addressing himself to this point, Nixon said: "I have a basic faith that the American people themselves will make sound judgments regarding family size and frequency of births, judgments that are conducive both to the public interest and to personal family goals.

"I believe in the right of married couples to make these judgments for themselves."

Despite an almost curt rejection of the major recommendation of the commission he himself appointed, Nixon expressed his thanks for its work and for the information assembled.

"The recommendations of the commission will be taken into account," the President said, "as we formulate our national growth and population research policies."

The President noted that many of the questions raised by the report cannot be answered purely on the basis of fact "but rather involve moral judgments about which reasonable men will disagree."

The 14-chapter report recommended among other things that states adopt laws to permit minors to receive contraceptive and prophylactic information and services, and payment by government and private health services for the full costs of all means of fertility control, including voluntary sterilization.

When the first part of the report was made public March 15, the section on abortion was attacked by the United States Catholic Conference as leading "into an ideological valley of death."

But when the report had been issued in full, a group of national Protestant and Jewish leaders urged the President to give it serious consideration despite his known opposition to abortion legislation.

"I would hope that abortion and sterilization would not be used as a red herring to draw attention away from the larger issues," said Bishop John Wesley Lord of the United Methodist Church.

In his statement, Nixon noted that the extensive public discussion generated by the population commission report "clearly indicates the need to continue research in areas touching on population growth and distribution."

Desperate move begins to reach 50 entombed miners

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — Rescue workers, thwarted in almost 75 hours of efforts to reach 50 entombed miners a mile under the earth's surface, opened a second desperation rescue operation Friday.

Only a few hours after the Sunshine Co. advised the families of the missing to give up the vigil at least temporarily and "go home and rest," federal mine officials announced a newly developed experimental television camera and a device called a torpedo would be used in hopes of reaching the miners.

lies went to separate Protestant and Roman Catholic prayer services. Some mourned the 32 men already known dead, many gave thanks for the 108 rescued, and many prayed for the missing men.

Elbert Osborne, director of the Bureau of Mines, said the federal agency would use its own men to try to contact the trapped men through a four-foot wide ventilation shaft.

The main rescue effort halted Friday morning when dangerous smoke billowed out of a high speed elevator shaft, the only access from the 3,100-foot level to the 4,600-foot level where the men are believed to be.

Workers shifted to the No. 12 shaft, a ventilation pit which extends from the 3,700-foot level of the nation's biggest and richest silver mine to the 4,800 foot level.

But even with luck it appeared rescuers would not be able to reach the men before tonight.

115 die in worst Italy air crash

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — An Alitalia DC8 jetliner carrying 115 persons crashed and burned during a landing attempt at Palermo's Punta Raisi Airport Friday night, killing all aboard. It was the worst crash in Italian aviation history.

A spokesman for the Italian airline, which celebrated its 25th anniversary Friday, said the plane carried 108 passengers and a crew of seven. A passenger list was not released immediately but there were not believed to be any Americans aboard.

The plane crashed into a mountain during a landing approach at the airport, which is located on a narrow plain between the mountain range and the Tyrrhenian Sea.

The worst previous crash in Italy was when a Trans World Airlines plane crashed in a storm near Milan in 1959, killing 68 persons.

It took rescue crews three hours to reach the site because of the rugged terrain. Reports from the site said workers found charred and mangled bodies. "First checks on the scene lead us to believe that there are no survivors," an Alitalia spokesman said.

Rescue parties rushed to Montagna Lunga (Long Mountain) 16 miles west of here reported finding a number of charred and mangled bodies. They said there were no immediate signs of survivors.

Residents from a nearby village attending a campaign rally in connection with Sunday's national elections said they saw a flash of light on the mountainside, followed moments later by the sound of an explosion.

Red Cross ambulances, firemen and police rushed to the scene. Soldiers and volunteers also took part in the rescue attempt.

The plane was on a flight from Rome to Palermo.

Carson, friend sue for $23 million

JOHNNY CARSON

Combined News Services
Television personality Johnny Carson and Miss Joanna Holland filed a $23-million libel suit in a Chicago federal court Friday against the publisher and six distributors of the National Insider. The suit claims the Insider, a weekly tabloid, published a story titled "NBC Pays for Carson's Love Life", which was "malicious, false and wholly without an element of truth." The article said "the move of the Carson Show to Hollywood was made just so Johnny can be near Miss Holland" and said Miss Holland "is the woman who broke up his marriage." The suit alleged. Attorney Paul Levy said Miss Holland is "just a long-time friend of Carson's," is a native of New York and has always lived in New York.

The suit said the Insider "could have ascertained, with the exercise of reasonable care and diligence, that the matter was untrue." The Insider is published by Allied News Company, Chicago.
"Mr Carson has just had his fill of this kind of irresponsible reporting," Levy said. Carson and Miss Holland are each asking $5 million damages.

Together they ask $6 million from six distributors of the paper and an additional $7 million from Allied and the distributors for conspiring to distribute the paper. Distributors named as defendants are the J. L. Marshall News Co. of Cincinnati; the Ludington News Co., Detroit; The Pierce News Co., St. Louis; the Metropolitan News Co., New York; the Sunset News Co., Los Angeles, and Wisconsin Periodical Distributors Co., Milwaukee.

Brando wins

Marlon Brando was awarded custody of his 13 year old son Friday and Brando's former wife, Anna Kashfi, was given the right to visit the child weekly. The ruling in Santa Monica by Superior Court Judge Lawrence Rittenband ended a bitter dispute which began with the couple's divorce in 1959. Brando, 47, and Miss Kashfi, an actress, had shared custody of the youth, Christian Devi. Attorneys for Brando and Miss Kashfi issued a joint statement after the ruling saying the boy will live with Brando and attend school in Los Angeles. Miss Kashfi will be allowed to visit the boy weekly and have extended visitation rights when Brando is out of town, the lawyers said.

The hail then melted, burying parts of the area in mud up to three feet thick.

Erratic 'midget'

Sheriff's Deputy David Smukowski stopped a car on a Milwaukee freeway Friday after he saw it operating in an erratic fashion. Inside were the driver and three passengers. Smukowski, noting some differences in description, asked how she could possibly be the person identified on the license.

Police said the girl's car had struck two parked cars, causing $200 damage, before entering the freeway. The girl was turned over to her parents for further action. Police declined to release the name of the young driver or her parents.

Sacramento, Sonoma aides tell of buys from Kristovich

Associated Press

Public officials from Sacramento and Sonoma counties testified in Los Angeles Friday they bought items privately from estates under the control of former Los Angeles county public administrator Baldo Kristovich.

Kristovich, 56, is on trial in Superior Court on charge of mishandling estate property under his control.

George L. Nielsen, coroner and public administrator for Sacramento County, testified he purchased a small refrigerator, two television sets, a washing machine and other goods since 1966 from Los Angeles County estates without bidding on them at public auction.

Nielsen said Kristovich twice brought items to Sacramento when he was there on business.

Marteen Miller, Sonoma County public defender, then testified he bought a grand piano, a 1967 automobile and a television set from Kristovich and paid $2,777.

Miller said, however, he understood he was paying the appraised value of the items.

Kristovich was fired from his job after 12 years service last fall. He was indicted by the county grand jury shortly afterward.

2 L.A. cops face charge of brutality

Associated Press

The Los Angeles County Grand Jury is investigating charges of brutality against two Los Angeles police officers relieved of duty after allegedly beating a sailor last year in South Central Los Angeles, police said Friday.

Police have preferred disciplinary charges against officers David A. Newman, 23, and James O. Ray, 24.

The Police Department Internal Affairs Division requested the grand jury investigation after it charged the two officers with "employing improper physical tactics" while making an arrest last July 26. The officers were removed from duty Dec. 31.

NEWMAN and Ray allegedly used excessive force in arresting Lomnie officer stationed aboard the USS Racine police said.

A department spokesman said Ray and Newman were called to the scene of a disturbance in South Central Los Angeles where a large crowd had gathered.

The spokesman said the two officers ordered Foster to move his car, which was blocking the sidewalk, as the crowd grew unruly. A fight broke out when the two tried to arrest Foster.

In December my wife gave L & L Lighting, 719 Main St., Santa Ana, $31.45 for a lamp she ordered. They were to call her when it came in. When it hadn't arrived by mid-February, we asked for a refund. We were told a check would be mailed to us from their Los Angeles office but we haven't received it yet. Can you help? W. P. W., Westminster.

You may or may not get a refund. The company has closed its doors and "is essentially bankrupt," said Sheldon Kaufman, Los Angeles attorney for L & L Lighting. He has funds to repay only some of L & L Lighting's customers. The ones who get paid are those who can prove the company owes them money. Since you gave your sales slip to the salesman when you asked for a refund you may not be able to prove your claim to his satisfaction. Phone Kaufman at (213) 273-1850 about your refund.

I have heard of champagne dispensers you can rent for parties that come in different sizes to serve certain numbers of guests. Can ACTION LINE get more information for me? I want one for a 50th wedding anniversary party I'm having for my in-laws. Mrs. H. H., Long Beach.

You probably are referring to champagne fountains which you can rent at Abbey Rents, 3100 E. Pacific Coast Highway and at A to Z Rental Center, 10382 Los Alamitos Blvd., Los Alamitos. A spokesman for Abbey said they have two kinds of silver plated fountains which hold three or seven gallons of champagne, constantly recirculating the liquid. She said the three gallon, which rents for $25 a day, serves as many as 75 people, but that you would need the seven gallon, for $40 a day, for a larger crowd. A to Z has white plastic, anodized aluminum and stainless steel champagne fountains in two, three and five gallon sizes, that rent for $10 to $20 a day.

Luxurious tires?

Would you please tell me why we are made to pay an excise tax (luxury tax) on automobile tires and telephone bills? Both are necessities, not luxuries. They took the excise tax off cosmetics which I think could be called luxuries. Mrs. D. S. C., Long Beach.

An excise tax isn't a luxury tax. It is a tax on goods or services, rather than on income, said Leon Levine, spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, D.C. At one time there was a group of excise taxes on luxury items, but they were repealed in 1965, he said.

SOUND OFF!

Our 17-year-old son was involved in a minor traffic accident at a busy Long Beach intersection one recent day at 4:45 p.m. There were several witnesses. As soon as the cars were moved to the curb, however, all the other vehicles moved on. As any parent of a teen-aged boy can attest, auto insurance comes at a high price. The cause of this accident boils down now to one driver's word against the other. This was a harried time of day, I realize, but just one voluntary witness for either driver would make such a big difference. D.M. Lakewood.

SUSAN GUBERMAN IN COLLEGE LAW LIBRARY. She Also Works Nude in North Hollywood Club

Works as nude dancer Cute law student barely gets by Susan Guberman, a cute brunette law student in her mid-20s, has heard the one about attorneys and the naked truth.

She's working her way through law school as a topless-bottomless dancer.

And, she's student body vice president at University of San Fernando Valley College of Law.

"THERE HAVE been a lot of jokes about that title," she concedes.

Her choice of a part-time job may seem odd to some, but she says "I just picked the one that pays the most money."

Another reason, she says, is the 20 or so hours a week she spends dancing and serving drinks are fitted around her law courses and still allow time to study.

The long-haired 24-year-old says she doesn't agree with those who might think she's being exploited by dancing nude.

Any woman who works for $2 an hour as a typist or office clerk is the one that's being taken advantage of, she thinks.

Miss Guberman says she had a couple of misgivings at first about the job, which she spotted in a classified ad.

First, her build is on the slight side and "fashion calls for busty strippers and I wondered if I was built with enough curves for the job."

And, she says, she was also a bit worried because "I'm a lousy dancer."

FOR HER dancing, she says: "You don't do a typical strip tease any more, that's old fashioned. You just sort of slink around to the music and take off whatever you are wearing."

She doesn't see any conflict between her chosen profession and her part-time job, although she is looking for a job as a law clerk — as do most law students.

"I question the values of anyone who feels more threatened by a naked body than by a body that is starved for food," she says.

Frishman won't say if he faces muzzle on PW issue

By CHARLES SUTTON Staff Writer

Former prisoner of war Lt. Robert Frishman declined to say Friday whether the federal government had taken steps to discourage him and other ex-PWs from speaking out on the prisoner of war issue in the United States.

Frishman, contacted by phone at the Miramar Naval Air Station near San Diego, where he is stationed, said he didn't want to discuss the question until he had seen a transcript of statements made by a Teamsters Union official who had visited Hanoi, and by the coordinator of the National League for Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, Mrs. Evelyn Grubb.

At a Washington news conference Thursday, Mrs. Grubb told reporters that she had been given assurance by the federal government recently that it is trying to end down the activities of former prisoners of war — the implication being that Washington may not want to stand in the way of any further prisoner repatriations.

Hanoi has indicated that is might release more PWs if it can be certain that the U.S. government won't use them for what the Communists called "propaganda purposes."

The North Vietnamese haven't released any Americans since they turned Frishman and two other prisoners free in 1969.

In his comments to reporters Thursday, Teamsters Union vice president Harold Gibbons said the Communists are put out because they can't understand "the Pentagon-sponsored tours at which an ex-PW would talk about pulling out fingernails" — a reference to some of the statements alleged to have been made by Frishman in his speeches.

Friday, Frishman denied having said that prisoners' fingernails had been pulled out. He said he knew men who had lost their fingernails, but he explained that he never said how they lost them.

He also said that when he addresses people on the prisoner issue, he usually does so on his own, and after duty hours. He makes about two talks a month now, he added.

The Navy lieutenant stood by his allegations of prisoner mistreatment and challenged the North Vietnamese to prove otherwise by opening their prisoner camps to Red Cross inspection.

Frishman's father, Harry Frishman, an official in the Long Beach School system, said the latest statements about his son seem designed to muzzle him.

"My son was warned that they — the Communists — would get him if he spoke out. He was told that Hanoi had their representatives in the United States and they would be watching everything he did. But Bob is no coward," he added.

"He has taken that chance and he continues to take that chance every day of his life because he cannot forget his buddies who are languishing in the hell holes of Hanoi. And he doesn't want America to forget them either," the elder Frishman declared.

Paralyzed man burns to death in Lakewood

A Lakewood man who was partially paralyzed from multiple sclerosis was burned to death Friday as he tried to summon firemen to his burning house.

John L. Shanteau, 49, of 2428 Dollar St., apparently accidentally set fire to his armchair while smoking and was unable to rise from the chair, firemen said.

Shanteau's wife, Virginia, was at work when the 2:15 p.m. fire occurred, and firemen weren't summoned until neighbors saw smoke.

The victim had his telephone on his lap, firemen said.

They estimated that only about $800 damage had been done to the house.

Shortcut to theft

A lawnmower and an engine valued totally at $482 were taken from the Short Lawnmower Shop, 5632 Dairy St., by burglars who used a pass key to gain entry. Long Beach police said Friday.

N.C., Texas voters go to polls today

Associated Press

Voters go to the polls today in North Carolina and Texas, where a woman is seeking the gubernatorial nomination and school busing is an issue.

The Democratic and Republican primaries in Texas are complicated by a variety of issues, including a straw vote on school busing. There are half a dozen statewide races as well as numerous contests for congressional nominations.

Texas Democrats will get their first chance ever to express a preference in the presidential race.

through a complex system involving precinct conventions.

The race for the Democratic nomination for governor has drawn the most interest. A central issue is a bank loans-stock scandal involving improperly secured bank loans which allegedly were made to certain officials so they could buy stocks and reap quick profits.

Two major reform candidates emerged, including a woman—Frances Farent-hold, a two-term state representative. Gov. Preston Smith is seeking a third term.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, fresh from his win in Tennessee, and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford are battling it out in North Carolina, hoping for that state's 64 first-ballot delegate votes.

Also on the Democratic ballot are Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who have withdrawn from primary campaigning, and Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York.

To hold 'tax loophole' probe

Muskie keeps candidacy alive

United Press International

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, seeking to keep his nonprimary candidacy for president alive from his power base in the Senate, Friday announced he will begin tax reform hearings next week focused on legal loopholes that benefit major industries.

The hearings by his Senate government operations subcommittee here intended to publicize his April 18 speech calling for an end to federal income tax loopholes which he estimated cost the Treasury $14 billion a year in potential revenues, his aides said.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader will be the first witness starting Tuesday.

Muskie's staff noted that no 1971 taxes were paid by the Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa), Standard Oil of Ohio, U.S. Steel or Westvaco, even though Alcoa's net pre-tax income that year was $76.7 million; Sohio's was $61 million; U.S. Steel, $154.5 million; and Westvaco, $4.4 million.

Muskie dropped out as an active Democratic presidential contender after he suffered twin primary losses last week in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, but made clear he still would be a candidate at the party's national convention in Miami Beach in July.

After Gov. George C. Wallace's overwhelming victory in the Tennessee primary Thursday, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., led the field with 285+ committed delegates to the Democratic convention. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., was second with 181, and Wallace was third with 169.

The delegate totals, compiled by United Press International, include only 83 elected delegates in the disputed Ohio primary, where Humphrey narrowly beat McGovern in the statewide vote but could lose to him in total delegates once the returns are in from district races.

Eldest son of Robert Kennedy backs McGovern

The oldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Joseph Kennedy, said Friday in Los Angeles he supports Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination but he can't campaign for him.

The 19-year-old said, "I can't work actively because I work for the Kennedy Foundation and it would lose its tax exempt status if I did."

He added, "I think he is the best candidate and I believe everything he says."

The young Kennedy talked with newsmen at dedication ceremonies for Robert F. Kennedy Elementary School in East Los Angeles.

Ashbrook urges Nixon drop Russ trip over aid to N. Viet

Associated Press

Rep. John Ashbrook, conservative candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said in Los Angeles that President Nixon should postpone or cancel the Moscow summit meeting.

Saying the Russians are major suppliers of arms to North Vietnam, the Ohio Republican said the meeting "will further show the weakness of the United States in dealing with the Communist" if the President goes "hat in hand."

Ashbrook also called for renewed bombing of the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Vietnam. "I would go farther," he said. "I think a strike should be made against the Red River dike system."

Vietnamization is "a shaky reed" but American ground troops should not be reintroduced to Vietnam fighting, he said.

If renewed bombing fails to control the invasion by North Vietnamese troops, "at that point the American people have to admit the Vietnamization policy has not worked . . . and admit a loss," he said.

Ashbrook said Nixon has made "a complete philosophical about face" over the past few years.

Calif. Demos urge peace treaty with Red Chinese

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An American peace treaty with Red China and creation of a national secretary of peace top a 120-point party platform unveiled Friday by the California Democratic party.

The proposed platform also calls for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam and renunciation of a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution against school busing.

State party chairman Charles Manatt said he expected "90 or 95 per cent" of the proposed platform will be adopted by the state party's executive committee at a Sacramento meeting starting tonight.

Then that platform proposal will be sent to the national Democratic Party Platform Committee.

Manatt said about 10,000 persons took part in the drafting of the platform, starting with public hearings in 35 California cities last fall. He said their recommendations were forwarded to 10 policy committees of the state party platform committee which drafted the final platform proposal.

One recommendation is for the President to add a secretary of peace to his cabinet to keep in touch with national and international peace organizations and to "develop programs to parallel the ROTC with a curriculum designed to develop the attitudes and skills needed for nonmilitary crisis intervention, negotiation and arbitration."

Other planks in the proposed party platform would:

—Urge "a bilateral negotiated renunciation of force agreement between the United States and the People's Republic of China covering the area of the Taiwan Straits."

—Demands "an immediate cessation of U.S. bombing above the demilitarized zone and calls for the war in Southeast Asia be ended immediately with all of our troops returning home immediately."

—Proposes a minimum annual income approach to welfare and an end to the requirement of local participation in the financing of welfare.

—Opposes a proposed constitutional amendment which would outlaw busing for purposes of school desegregation.

"Busing is an artificial instrument of change and should be abandoned as soon as possible, but until we are certain that an end to busing will not mean segregated schools, it should be maintained as one means available . . . to achieve quality, desegregated schools," the proposed busing plank says.

UROC chief hits Nixon, may support Ashbrook

SAN JOSE (UPI) — The head of the United Republicans of California Friday accused President Nixon of "playing a game" in Vietnam at the expense of American lives and predicted his group probably would endorse the GOP presidential candidacy of Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio.

Walter Hintzen, chairman of the 10,000-member organization, sharply criticized Nixon for following the policies of previous Democratic administrations, "wrecking the dollar," wasting defense money and for making an "obscene" trip to China.

Hintzen said that, if Nixon wins the GOP nomination, he and others might "sit on their hands" and not vote in the general election in November even at the cost of California going Democratic.

The Santa Barbara businessman made his remarks at a news conference as more than 1,000 delegates began arriving for the weekend convention of UROC.

GOP move brings 'relief'

No tears in San Diego

Combined News Services

SAN DIEGO — This city heaved one big, pent-up sigh of relief Friday, and then went on with business as usual.

"I'm really too busy with my regular work to get excited about it," said Ernest Crouch, manager of the hotel which had been serving as headquarters for the 1972 Republican National Convention. "I couldn't care less."

THERE WAS no surprise in learning that the Republican National Committee had voted to move the convention from San Diego to Miami Beach, Fla. It had been expected for the past two weeks. Any tears that were shed had since been wiped away.

Without a murmur of dissent, the GOP committee in Washington had voted earlier Friday to move the party's 1972 convention to Miami Beach, where the Democrats also will pick their presidential candidate. The Democratic convention will take place five weeks before the Republicans meet on Aug. 21.

"It's been kind of like a slow death," said Phil Phillips, assistant executive director of the San Diego Civic Host Committee formed for the convention. "We had the embalming and the wake and have just been waiting around for the actual funeral. This is it. They played taps today."

MAYOR Pete Wilson acknowledged that the city did not struggle to keep the convention, saying that it had been viewed from the outset as "distinctly a mixed blessing." The City Council initially chose not to submit a bid, but reconsidered when reports began circulating that President Nixon wanted the convention in San Diego.

"We were hardly disposed to make an effort to retain the convention when it was revealed that the national committee was entertaining the idea of moving it to Miami Beach," Wilson said.

Police Chief Ray Hoobler MAYOR Pete Wilson said their departments in general were relieved at the move. Both added that they felt their men could have successfully handled the huge throngs of visitors and expected demonstrations, and said there was some feeling of disappointment at not having the opportunity to prove it.

The city started moving April 26 to recover up to $175,000 it has spent preparing for the convention. City Atty. John Will previously had said his office was studying the possibility of legal action against the Republicans.

Wilson said the city will still take note of what would have been GOP Convention Week.

"To properly mark the occasion," he said, "I am proclaiming the week of Aug. 21 as the 'Week of San Diego, America's finest city.'"

"We're disappointed," said Leon Parma, chairman of the Civic Host Committee, "but we'll recover."

HHH blasts Nixon on war; McGovern assails 'smears'

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey Friday accused the Nixon administration of "deception" in the Vietnam war and Sen. George McGovern decried what he and his aides called a "smear campaign" against him in the Nebraska presidential primary campaign.

Humphrey, arriving from Ohio nearly two days after McGovern, concentrated on President Nixon's handling of the war at a news conference here.

McGovern toured industrial plants, a meat-packing plant and farm areas seeking the votes of the working man and farmer.

THE TWO South Dakota natives were scheduled for a face-to-face confrontation later Friday at the state's Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner. They were to be joined by Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty, a native Nebraskan who is campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination only in Nebraska and California.

McGovern and Humphrey are regarded as well in front of the nine other Democratic candidates on the ballot for next Tuesday's primary.

Referring to reports that the administration had Marines poised off Vietnam, Humphrey said he would have to have "more evidence" before supporting use of the Marine force.

If it was to support our troops, he said, "I would favor the action to get our ground troops out of the country."

"I have been fooled too often by the Nixon administration in the past," Humphrey said. "I don't want to put my hand on the hot stove of deception a third time."

He said ground troops should not be sent back into Vietnam.

McGovern charged that Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington "has done a hatchet job on me in a number of areas, including Nebraska." He charged that Jackson had misrepresented his position on the legalization of marijuana and legalized abortion, among other issues.

The South Dakota senator said he has proposed no action on abortion reform and "as president, I would propose no action."

Regarding marijuana, McGovern said, "I do not favor the legalization of marijuana. This is a matter regulated by state law. It is a mistake, however, to commit marijuana offenders, most of them youthful experimenters, to the penitentiary."

Unemployment stays near 6%

Food costs decrease, other wholesale prices up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lower meat, poultry, fish and egg costs drove wholesale food prices down 0.7 per cent in April, the second straight monthly decline since sharp increases stirred consumers' anger.

Overall, the government reported Friday, the wholesale price index went up 0.1 per cent last month, with a 0.3 per cent increase in industrial commodity prices more than offsetting the drop in food.

At the same time, the government said that unemployment remained unchanged at 5.9 per cent of the work force in April. That was the 18th straight month that the rate has hovered near the 6 per cent mark.

Dr. Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and Dr. Marina Whitman, a member of the council, welcomed the drop in wholesale food prices as proof the administration is "making progress" in the fight against inflation.

LAWRENCE F. O'Brien, the Democratic national party chairman, also said the food price drop at wholesale levels was "good news for American families." But he said the higher industrial commodity price report "reveals that inflation is still a fact of economic life."

Stein conceded that "the real core of this thing (inflation) is what's happening to industrial commodity prices at the wholesale level."

Unlike food prices, industrial commodities fluctuate little from month to month and are considered a far more accurate barometer of what the economy is going to do.

After seasonal adjustment last month, the wholesale price index was up 0.3 per cent.

The unemployment rate in Long Beach-Los Angeles area increased fractionally to 6.2 per cent of the work force last month, state officials reported Friday.

But they said other economic indicators show the job situation in the area is continuing to make steady recovery from the unemployment peak of 7.6 per cent a year ago.

The total number of persons holding jobs in Los Angeles County actually increased in April and the total number listed as unemployed actually decreased, but the jobless rate went up because of seasonal factors, said the State Department of Human Resources Development.

What it means is that although the job picture brightened in April, it didn't brighten as much as might be expected at this time of year.

The 6.2 per cent jobless rate represented the second straight month of unemployment increases this year after a long downward trend last fall. The county unemployment rate was 6.1 per cent in March and 6.0 per cent in February.

However, the current levels were well below the 7.6 per cent registered in March and April of 1971.

THE BUREAU of Labor Statistics said the number of persons with jobs remained about the same last month, an all-time high of 81.2 million, and the number of unemployed workers also held about steady at 5.1 million.

However, slight increases in the average work week of rank and file workers appeared to reflect the recent upsurge in the economy that the administration predicts will drop the unemployment rate to 5 per cent or less by the end of this year.

O'Brien said President Nixon apparently has "simply written off" the 6 per cent of the labor force who are without jobs. But he said "the Democratic Party flatly rejects this approach and we intend to make it a central issue of the 1972 presidential campaign."

The wholesale price decline for farm products and processed foods — the largest in seven months — was led by a 19 per cent drop in egg prices. Live poultry prices went down 12.5 per cent, processed meats, poultry and fish prices decreased 2.9 per cent and livestock prices declined 2.1 per cent.

WHOLESALE food prices went up 5.3 per cent during December, January and February, the first three full months of Phase 2 after the price freeze ended.

The April decline of 0.7 per cent combined with a 0.4 per cent drop in March left the food index still 4.1 per cent above what it was in November when the price freeze ended.

The wholesale consumer finished goods index — roughly comparable to price index — went down 1.2 per cent in April, the largest est monthly decline in 19 months.

The BLS said the major

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-5
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., May 8, 1972

reason for the increase in the industrial commodity index was higher prices for hides, skins, leather, shoes and other leather products stemming from a worldwide shortage of these items.

Veto power over raise

State pay fight set for ballot

SACRAMENTO — California state employees claimed victory Friday in their petition campaign seeking to curtail the power of the governor and the Legislature over salary increases.

The California State Employees Association said it had collected more than 925,000 signatures to insure the proposal would appear on the statewide ballot in November.

"There is no question but that we have already qualified," Kirk Taylor, CSEA communications chief, said in an interview.

The proposed amendment to the California Constitution needs the signatures of 520,806 registered voters to secure a place on the ballot.

Taylor said the last of the petitions would be turned in to county clerks throughout the state by Monday — the deadline. County clerks then begin the long process of checking whether the signers are qualified voters.

"Even if 25 per cent of them are disqualified for one reason or another, there still will be more than enough to qualify," Taylor said.

The 113,000-member employee group launched the petition campaign Jan. 10 and announced it would spend $1.5 million to $2 million in a public relations campaign to win voter approval of the measure.

CSEA President Leliov A. Pemberton said, "We are taking this step because the existing machinery for determining salary and benefit levels has broken down."

The campaign came on the heels of Gov. Reagan vetoing all pay hike bills for state workers last year. The legislature the year before refused to grant salary increases to state college and university faculty members.

If passed by voters, the initiative would: —Strip the governor of the power to veto pay raises for state employees.

—Require that the governor include in his budget recommendations from the State Personnel Board, University of California Board of Regents and trustees of the State College and University system.

—Allow the Legislature to change those salary recommendations only by a two-thirds vote of the Assembly and Senate.

—Require settlement of non-wage issues by collective bargaining.

The two-thirds vote requirement caused a split last December among the CSEA staff when General Manager Loren Smith resigned saying that provision would lead to voter rejection of the initiative.

Pemberton said the initiative was prompted because "we can no longer risk disruption of vital services" by possible state employee strikes.

Reagan's budget proposal to the Legislature in January called for a five per cent pay hike for state employees except state college and university faculty members, who would get 7.5 per cent.

But the governor told a CSEA conference April 13 that he plans a second set of pay raises this year for some workers, but he disclosed no specifics.

Reinecke cites gains in economy, tells needs

California's economy is improving, but depressed industries still need strengthening if the state is to show a significant economic upswing, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke said Friday in Los Angeles.

Reinecke made the assessment at the first meeting of the California Commission for Economic Development of which he is chairman. The commission was created to keep watch on the economic condition of the state.

"The real significant direction of this commission is to identify problem areas and to do something before we read about them in statistics of unemployment or a downturn in economic activity for the state," Reinecke said.

Congress formally devalues dollar on world market

WASHINGTON — The United States formally devalued the dollar Friday after Congress cleared an appropriations bill which had held up the declaration.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally notified the International Monetary Fund that the U.S. is changing the par value of the dollar from one thirty-fifth to one thirty-eighth of an ounce of gold.

The change will become effective at noon Monday. It is the final official step by the nation in fulfilling its Agreement to devalue the dollar by raising the official price of gold from $35 to $38 an ounce.

That agreement was reached last December at an International Monetary Conference in which the currencies of several major nations were changed, settling a long monetary crisis.

Connally's declaration to the IMF is a technical matter since major non-Communist nations have been trading currency since last December as if the dollar already were devalued.

Congress passed the bill raising the price of gold recently, but the Treasury held up formally declaring the dollar until an appropriations bill directly related to it was passed.

The bill, totaling $1.6 billion, enables the U.S. to fulfill its so-called "maintenance of value" obligations in international organizations.

These obligations call for increases in U.S. subscriptions to the IMF and other international financial institutions proportionate to the gold price increase.

The devaluation of the dollar of about 8 per cent is the first since the mid-1930s. When President Roosevelt established the official price of gold at $35 an ounce.

"The change in par value of the dollar in terms of gold will have no effect on the value of the dollar in foreign exchange markets," the Treasury said in a statement.

"The markets have reflected, since the Smithsonian agreement in December, change in exchange rates agreed to and announced at that time."

SENATORS HEAR OF FEDERAL HOUSING PROGRAM ABUSES
Ex-Ghetto Realtor John Morales Tells of Kickbacks, Overpricing
—AP Wirephoto

Ex-speculator describes bilking of poor on housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former inner-city real estate speculator described to a Senate subcommittee Friday how federal home ownership programs were misused to steer poor families into overpriced houses often destined to be foreclosed and abandoned.

Guilt denied in fast-buck fraud case

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dorsey Don Lowers, the Akron attorney whose quick-profit investment program crumbled in debt, pleaded innocent Friday to a charge of giving false information to secure $200,000 in bank loans.

Lowers was indicted by a federal grand jury in Cleveland last month on two counts of providing false information to obtain loans from the Richland Trust Co. in Mansfield. State and Summit County authorities also are investigating Lowers' operations, which paid big profits to some investors in the late 1960s. Lowers said he was using high interest loans to invest in the salvage freight business. Attorneys for the investors, however, contend he simply used new investment cash to pay off debts at high interest rates, until finally his money pyramid got top heavy and collapsed. Lowers now owes some $11 million to an estimated 1,400 creditors, according to records filed in bankruptcy court.

New York City between 1965 and 1970, said he paid kickbacks, described as gifts, to officials of mortgage companies and title insurance firms for expediting his transactions.

He told the Senate Anti-trust and Monopolies subcommittee that he also filled out credit and income forms for his buyers. These were sent to credit bureaus that subsequently did only perfunctory checks, Morales said.

The subcommittee is probing reports of scandals in the government's inner-city home ownership programs for the poor, with emphasis on New York City.

Speculators allegedly have made large profits on the sale of decrepit, overpriced, government-backed houses. The owners often abandon the homes because they can't afford the mortgage and repair costs.

Another witness, Gerald Canavan, a closing attorney for United Institutional Servicing Corp., said the former president of that large New York mortgage company routinely received payments from speculators when their houses were closed.

Canavan said the official, Bernard Roth, was responsible for determining how much speculators would pay United for arranging a mortgage. The payments to Roth were not recorded on the company's books, Canavan said, and he said he did not know what they were for.

The Federal Housing Administration appraisals allowing these large spreads were often made by other real estate speculators working part time for the government, he said.

When the other speculators learned of a low, tentative purchase price in their role as appraiser, Morales said, they sometimes outbid him for the house. The former speculator said he paid tips of between $5 and $25 to each of the officials of financial institutions who helped expedite his deals, including paper processors for mortgage companies, mortgage company inspectors who certify that repairs are done, closing attorneys, and title company lawyers.

HEW opposes substitute Soap industry told to keep phosphates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The multibillion-dollar soap industry was told Friday it will have to stick with polluting phosphates and toxic caustics in laundry detergents until a short-lived produce called NTA gets a clean bill of health.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it will continue to oppose use of nitrilotriacetic acid, voluntarily taken off the market 18 months ago, until new research determined whether NTA poses a hazard to human health.

A panel of nine nongovernment scientists told HEW that its one-month review of all available NTA studies leaves unanswered the question of whether the chemical causes cancer or genetic damage threatening future generations.

At the same time, however, the committee said it could not justify fears expressed earlier that NTA might be toxic, cause birth defects and expose man to concentrations of poisonous metals in drinking water.

DR. MERLIN K. DuVal, assistant HEW secretary for health and scientific affairs, said he has asked the panel to design new experiments to clear up the confusion.

New cancer research studies would take about two years to complete, DuVal said, but tests already under way could provide answers sooner if they met criteria of the committee's forthcoming recommendation.

"The consumer wants very much to take advantage of some of the contemporary chemical technology in terms of its capacity to clean clothes and other household goods," DuVal told a news conference.

"There are problems, however, with all cleaners," he added. "They are either highly alkaline and therefore caustic and hazardous for that reason, or they are potential pollutants such as phosphates, or they may involve chemicals like NTA which are themselves possibly carcinogenic."

AT THE present time, he said, the government cannot legally ban NTA but would express its concern to the public through the news media if industry should decide to resume use of it.

Procter & Gamble Co., which reportedly had ordered $167-million worth of NTA before the voluntary withdrawal, said it welcomes the prospects of additional government research.

"HEW is apparently going to sponsor additional experiments on its own and we welcome this in order to arrive at a final answer about this material," a company spokesman said.

NTA helps detergent soaps work more effectively by solubilizing heavy metals in the water and preventing scum buildup.

Ocean Spray to correct ad claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said Friday the makers of Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail had agreed to correct in future advertising the allegedly false nutritional claims it made in past ads.

A consent order, provisionally accepted by the FTC, marked the agency's second triumph in its campaign to force companies to run "corrective ads" so that consumers would not continue to believe allegedly false claims.

In the past, the FTC only ordered allegedly false ads to be discontinued. In its action against Ocean

Spray, it asked that one out of every four ads the company runs, or one-fourth of all its advertising spending, be devoted to this message: "If you've wondered what some of our earlier advertising meant when we said Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail has more food energy than orange juice or tomato juice, let us make it clear: we didn't mean vitamins and minerals. Food energy means calories. Nothing more."

The first corrective ad case involved Profile bread, and the corrective ads said that Profile is not good for weight reduction and is a bit lower in calories than other breads only because its slices are thinner.

The FTC is seeking similar corrective ads in cases involving Wonder Bread, Hostess snack cakes, Hi-C beverage and sugar, Sunoco and Chevron gasoline, Lysol disinfectant, Listerine mouthwash and several analgesics, including Bayer Aspirin, Excedrin, Bufferin and Anacin.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Why this large benefit for hospital?
Hospital costs are sky-rocketing. They are several times what they were only a few years ago. The $100.00 a day hospital bill is already here in many places. Your expenses will be high. Even if you have other hospital insurance, you will need money. This policy will pay the $1,000.00 a month benefit directly to you to use as you wish. $1,000.00 a month can be a mighty big cushion. And, after you leave the hospital there's the recuperative benefit. $500.00 a month for a period of time equal to the time you were in the hospital.

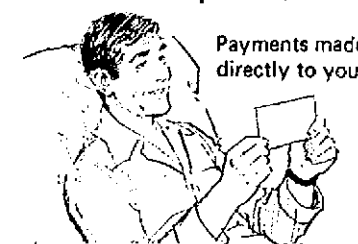

I already have newspaper reader insurance. Is this the same as that?
Like the policy offered by your newspaper and which many readers already have, this policy is a reader service of your newspaper. However, the premium is larger and the benefits much larger. Designed by National Casualty Company to help you meet today's enormous cost of being hurt. You may add this coverage and keep the policy you already have (which includes provisions for X-ray, ambulance, surgical, etc., as well as hospital). You may have both, (and collect from both) or you may have either one.

Is the advertised premium an "introductory" price?
No, this is the price you can expect to pay as long as your policy is in force. It is simply an unusual buy sponsored by your newspaper.
Would I have to be in hospital for a month to be paid?
No, you are paid if you are hospitalized even for a single day. The single day benefit for hospital is $33.33. The single day benefit for recuperative is $16.67.

Pays you $1,000 a month when you're hospitalized because of an accident

Plus $500 a month when you return home: it's like a second paycheck!

As much as $18,000.00 for a single accident. Also, important death benefits up to $10,000.00.

All for the low, low premium of $5 for 2 months, $27.50 the full year, whatever your age!

This does not replace your newspaper's usual reader accident policy. We suggest it as a valuable addition.

3-year Capitol vacancy seen for quakeproofing

SACRAMENTO — The Legislature would have to move out of California's century-old Capitol for three years if it is decided to have workmen make the structure earthquakeproof, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, said Friday.

And the cost would be $3 million, added the veteran senator, chairman of the Joint Committee on Legislative Space Needs which is investigating the need for a new Capitol or a legislative office building.

HARRY DEVINE, an architect hired by Collier's committee contends that a new legislative building should be built. His report said the old Capitol is too crowded and unsafe.

"The old wing is simply operating on borrowed time in relation to possible earthquake-caused stresses so that even if the space requirements of the Legislature were not at the critical stage, the safety of the occupants of the West Wing are at that point," Devine's report said.

The West Wing is the domed four-story original Capitol built in the 1880s housing the Assembly and Senate chambers, the press, secretary of state, lieutenant governor and state treasurer.

Other executive and legislative offices are in a structurally sound East Wing opened in 1952.

COLLIER suggested the legislature could meet in Sacramento's Memorial Auditorium while the old building was trussed up.

"The old building must be closed to the public, the occupants and the Legislature while it is made structurally safe," Collier said in an interview.

"No one could possibly work in this building during the rebuilding process."

There has been no formal reconstruction proposals although several experts, including State Architect Fred Hummel, have contended recently that the Capitol is unsafe in the event of a moderate or strong earthquake — something that Sacramento hasn't had in the past century.

Devine's report backs up Collier's comment that everyone would have to move if the old Capitol was to be rebuilt.

"THIS ALONE indicates the almost immediate need for a new legislative office building," the report said.

Collier has been laying the groundwork for several years for a proposed new building. At one point several years ago the cost of an estimated twin-tower structure was put at $65 million.

Collier said earlier this year he thinks the need for such a building will be mandatory within five years.

State water, farm boards oppose ecology initiative

SACRAMENTO — Claiming the Environmental Initiative would do more harm than good, California's water and agricultural boards Friday urged that voters reject Proposition 9 in the June 6 election.

The California Water Commission passed a resolution unanimously saying the measure "would result in destructive consequences" for the state.

Members of the State Board of Agriculture voted unanimously to oppose Proposition 9 after they were warned its proposed ban on long-lasting pesticides would lead to a $150 million agricultural loss the first year "and the losses would continue at an upward rate in future years."

Earlier the State Air Resources Control Board and Water Quality Control Board passed similar resolutions urging rejection of the measure.

However, the board of the 12,000-member California Democratic Council announced it is supporting Proposition 9. The CDC leaders condemned what they called "the deceptions and the scare tactics being employed by opponents of the measure."

CDC is an amalgamation of volunteer Democratic clubs.

The water commission resolution said Proposition 9 "would freeze arbitrary and irrational standards and prohibitions into state law which would have an extremely adverse and detrimental effect on the living conveniences and economic well-being of the citizens of our state entirely disproportionate to the benefits derived from the amounts of pollution that the proposition would propose to prevent."

dual water system, with one pipe providing water for cooking and drinking while another provided water for other home uses.

The survey was taken in South Lake Tahoe, Tahoe City, Livermore, Sunnyvale, Thousand Oaks, Simi Valley, Mission Viejo, Fountain Valley, Santee and Poway.

Drinking of recycled water opposed by 56%

STATELINE, Nev. — A public opinion poll taken in 10 Northern and Southern California communities showed 56 per cent of those questioned opposed to drinking reclaimed water.

Results of the poll were presented to the annual conference of the California and Nevada Water Pollution Control Association here Friday.

The survey was conducted by William Bruvold, associate professor of public health at the University of California, Berkeley, assisted by the state Department of Public Health.

Bruvold said that although the poll indicated opposition to recycled water for uses involving personal contact, there was little opposition to many other domestic uses.

Although 55 per cent of those polled said they would oppose the use of reclaimed water for cooking in the home or restaurants, less than 10 per cent objected to its use in home toilets, for residential lawn irrigation or for home laundries.

The reasons for opposition to the use of recycled water, Bruvold said, were primarily psychological and indicated a concern over the water's purity.

Bruvold noted there will be a need for more water reclamation in the next two decades.

7th Fleet Marines may be landed in Vietnam

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Friday left open the possibility that additional troops, most likely 7th Fleet Marines, might be landed in South Vietnam if Hanoi's offensive endangers the remaining American GIs.

Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, has authority to take whatever action is necessary to protect the 68,000 American troops still in the war zone.

Friedheim said he would not foreclose the possibility of Marines returning to Vietnam but gave no indication there are any plans at present for them to do so.

He indicated this could include bringing ashore as an emergency safety measure some or all of the 5,000 Marines now aboard 7th Fleet ships in the South China Sea.

Abrams, Friedheim said, also could beef up U.S. combat strength in Vietnam by substituting some noncombat support personnel with combat troops, provided within the approved manpower level set by President Nixon.

THE Pentagon also said the United States will reopen a base in Thailand to handle the new increase in U.S. air power for the war in Southeast Asia.

Friedheim said the base at Takli, north of Bangkok will be used again on an emergency basis. The site, he said, is the destination for 72 F4 phantom fighter bombers being flown from New Mexico. The base brings to six the total of U.S. bases for mounting strikes in Indochina.

Relying extensively on air power, the administration plans to cut troops strength in Vietnam to about 49,000 by July 1.

Since the start of the North Vietnamese offensive six weeks ago, both Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird have said repeatedly that no American combat ground troops would be sent back into the war zone.

FRIEDHEIM reaffirmed that position only Monday when newsmen asked about the possibility of a Marine landing to protect U.S. forces. "That would be regarded as a reintroduction of ground forces and that's what the secretary of state said we would not do," he replied.

But Friday, Friedheim refused to rule out that possibility, saying "I would not" consider such an action a resumption of U.S. ground combat responsibility. It is not our intention to resume the ground combat responsibility in South Vietnam," Friedheim said. He indicated that use of Marines or other forces to protect or evacuate U.S. support troops would fall within the U.S. security role.

American troops still in Vietnam include about six battalions of Army infantry, about 6,000 men whose mission is to safeguard the noncombat servicemen there, but not to engage in any offensive battle field action.

ASKED about Friedheim's remarks, White House deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said, "There is no change in our position."

Friedheim stressed that Abrams "has a great deal of flexibility" to determine the composition of the American force in Vietnam. He indicated that Abrams could replace support-type troops with additional combat forces from outside Vietnam.

About 2,000 Americans are in the area around Hue and Phu Bai where the North Vietnamese are expected to launch a major attack within the next few days.

If they are endangered, the offshore Marines could be quickly airlifted aboard helicopters to the area.

In Congress Friday, the Senate temporarily set aside an attempt to cut off money for U.S. combat involvement in Indochina.

THE measure sponsored by Sens. Clifford Case, D-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, would cut off money for U.S. forces Dec. 31 in return for U.S. prisoners.

One senator said privately: "There is general agreement to have the vote deferred until the President returns" from Moscow later this month.

Other backers of the measure said they don't have the votes to win now and are losing Republican support especially because of the war situation.

In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, anthropologist Margaret Mead said the government should have to file an environmental impact statement on the effect of bombing in Southeast Asia.

"We have been destroying the environment of Southeast Asian nations in an absolutely unforgivable fashion," she said.

EASTERN HIJACK

"He says he wants the airplane empty," the relay plane said of the demand for a new plane. "He says to remind you that he has a satchel full of high explosives with detonators, and if anything happens he will ignite it and both planes and all parties involved will go."

"You can assure him we have no hanky panky planned," the tower told him.

It was the first report that the hijacker was armed with anything besides a gun.

"HE (the hijacker) says if you try anything the pilot will be the first one to get it," the relay plane said. "The captain says please don't try anything. He knows the man means it. He says if you go along so nobody will get hurt."

The tower told the relay plane to tell the hijacked pilot that no attempts would be made to follow the aircraft when it leaves New Orleans.

The Eastern Airlines plane was first reported to have had some mechanical problems and the hijacker requested a maintenance crew be sent to check the difficulty.

But the hijacker, identified on the passenger list as a George Ames, apparently decided to demand another plane instead. But he insisted on keeping the same crew. He allowed a shaken stewardess to get off the plane in Washington with 48 passengers.

He gave no indication where he wanted to be taken.

THE FLIGHT originated in Allentown, Pa. The gunman, described by an Eastern official as "calm and calculating, not easily perturbed," used an intercom to hijack the plane. He forced it to land twice at Dulles, 40 miles west of Washington on the Virginia countryside.

During the first stop at Dulles, he released the 40 passengers and stewardess Carol Shannon, who had burst into tears at the sight of his gun, and collected $303,000 in cash, eight parachutes, two cartons of cigarettes, food and fuel.

A short time after leaving Dulles, the hijacker de-

Airline spokesmen said the hijacker's note contained threats of additional skyjacking in protest of what it called "U.S. imperialist aggression" in Vietnam.

Syd Albright, an airline public relations official, said the note was signed "The Anti-Imperialist Movement" and contained a threat against the life of President Nixon unless there is a halt to American bombing of North Vietnam.

The hijacker was described as in his early 20s, armed with a .38-caliber Smith & Wesson pistol, wearing a red plaid shirt, blue jeans, standing 6 feet tall and weighing between 230 and 240 pounds.

The plane landed at Los Angeles at 5:15 p.m., and took off at 7:28. The 737 has a maximum cruising range of 1,000 miles before refueling is necessary, airline officials said.

The passengers released at Los Angeles were:

Mrs. Kathy Carter, Huntington Beach, and her daughter, Darcy, 2 months.

Mrs. Linda Mast, Salt Lake City, and her son, Christopher, 4.

Mrs. Pat D. Doyle, Murray, Utah, and her son, Matthew, 7 months.

Mrs. Carol Cannon, Murray, and her son, Kevin, 5. Miss Mary Jane Graesser, Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Annie D. Freebairn, Salt Lake City. Louis R. Alfred, Pleasant Grove, Utah.

AIRLINE officials said Alfred may have been set free because he suffers from arthritis and is on crutches.

Albright said the note given to Harding by the hijacker spoke of several "heavily armed men" as involved in the seizure of the plane. But passengers said they saw only one man.

Airline officials said the hijacker apparently boarded at Salt Lake City.

The flight originated at Idaho Falls, Idaho, with only the Salt Lake stop before Los Angeles.

The FBI took charge of the investigation at International and negotiated with the hijacker by radio. After an hour of talking to the FBI the hijacker agreed to release the 11 passengers. Shortly after that the plane finished refueling at the western end of the northernmost runway and took off for Cuba.

RED FORCES MASS

phisticated weapons could be used to help turn back the North Vietnamese offensive, now in its fifth week.

UPI correspondent Donald A. Davis drove from Hue to the new northern front along the My Chanh River. He said Communist troops were on the northern side while government forces still held the southern bank of the river about 25 miles north of Hue.

Davis reported that Hue, which had been on the brink of anarchy after the retreat of Saigon forces from Quang Tri province earlier this week, "was busy and quiet... like Manhattan on a Sunday afternoon." He said military authorities were trying to persuade shopkeepers to reopen and markets to resume supplying food to the residents.

LT. GEN. Ngo Quang Truong told U.S. military advisers in Hue that government troops would fight to keep open Highway 1, running North to the Communist-controlled Quang Tri province. Truong was named Wednesday to replace Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the northern commander blamed for the government defeat in Quang Tri.

Vietnamese authorities, meanwhile, established an emergency government in Hue, cutting service departments from 15 to five in order to concentrate on security, health services, administration, social assistance and information.

In the Communist-threatened Central Highlands, military sources said U.S. bombers were carrying out major strikes against Communist positions in support of ground operations to reopen Highway 14 connecting the provincial capitals of Pleiku and Kontum City.

The sources said Communist troops were holed up in limestone abutments overlooking the highway and almost invulnerable to bombing attacks.

FIELD reports said at least two U.S. UH-1H (Huey) helicopters, equipped with wire-guided antitank missiles, had arrived at the big U.S. Camp Holloway helicopter base from Germany.

UPI reporter Matt Franjola reported from nearby Pleiku, in the Central Highlands 230 miles north of Saigon, that he had been told the "TOW"-type — for tube-launched, optically-tracked, wire-guided missiles — choppers had not yet been used in combat but were undergoing testing.

The missile is like a remote-controlled child's toy, with an operator looking through a telescopic lens at a target and guiding the warhead electronically through two wires trailing behind, according to the authoritative Jane's All The World's Aircraft.

Asked about the new missile-carrying helicopter, the U.S. Command in Saigon said:

"In response to the increased enemy tank threat, the U.S. Army has sent a small number of antitank missiles and UH-1H helicopters equipped with antitank weapons systems. They will be used by the remaining U.S. security forces to augment the protection of U.S. personnel."

Berry J. Shillito, U.S. assistant secretary of defense for installations and logistics, conferred for an hour Friday in Saigon with President Nguyen Van Thien on what military supplies were needed in the face of the Communist invasion.

At the same time, the team of admirals and generals from Washington fanned out across the country for a closeup look at what the South Vietnamese needed as well as to find out what new Soviet equipment had been provided the North Vietnamese.

A Hanoi spokesman refused to give any details of the meeting other than to say that Kissinger met with Le Duc Tho, a member of North Vietnam's Politburo. Kissinger and Tho met secretly until last fall in an attempt to work out a peace settlement.

The North Vietnamese announcement was the first official word of a recent secret meeting although two French newspapers reported the sessions earlier and said the talks deadlocked. U.S. officials in Washington and Paris have refused comment on the reports.

KISSINGER PARIS TRIP

Foreign officials in Nixon's behalf. Washington reporters are keeping a close watch on his comings and goings. Nevertheless, Tuesday's trip escaped notice here and first rumors of it surfaced in Europe.

Kissinger was seen here by a reporter at about 3 p.m. EDT Monday. Next word of his whereabouts—the White House has stopped giving out day-by-day details of his schedule—came Tuesday evening when he was reported to have dined with Nixon aboard the presidential yacht on the Potomac. The report was anthoritatively though unofficially confirmed in Washington. Sources said Kissinger spoke within the framework of President Nixon's eight-point peace plan of Jan. 25, and that he received no encouragement from the high-ranking North Vietnamese representatives.

However, the United States was described as not discouraged by the outcome, and not disposed to regard the talks as permanently ruptured. It was believed possible that Kissinger might return to Paris later, perhaps when the current offensive in Vietnam peaks.

Chicanos unhappy Verbal set-to mars fete for poverty chief

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A luncheon in honor of the nation's antipoverty chief -- Phillip Sanchez -- turned into a verbal set-to Friday after a Chicano spokesman accused the Long Beach antipoverty agency of slighting the Chicano community in planning the luncheon.

The meeting also produced a brief flareup between a Chicano City Council candidate and Mayor Edwin Wade.

Sanchez, who was regaled during the program with Mexican singing and dancing, appeared to take the local squabbles in his stride, though; in fact, he posed for pictures with some of the Chicanos after the meeting broke up.

The otherwise happy luncheon, held at the naval station's Allen Center, turned serious when Mrs. Mary Ellen Braden, introduced by Wade, told the audience that the Chicano community had decided to boycott the luncheon because arrangements for it were made without the community's "input."

"WE, THE CHICANO community," Mrs. Braden said, "have had numerous problems with the CAP agency (the local poverty agency), and today's incident exemplifies the discredit of the Chicano community by the agency." She took pains to say, however, that the boycott was not directed at Sanchez or the agency he represented -- the Office of Economic Opportunity.

No sooner did she leave the podium than she was followed by Mrs. Olivia Nieto, a City Council candidate, who charged the city with "going out of its way to stamp out" the culture and background of the Mexican-Americans in this area.

"The city at almost every turn ignores us," she declared.

Mrs. Nieto at one point sought to mention a newspaper article about her candidacy, but she was cut short by Wade, who was sitting at the head table.

Wade, obviously piqued because he thought Mrs. Nieto was pushing her candidacy, said her comment was "completely improper."

Mrs. Nieto offered an apology and explained that she was inexperienced in the ways of politics. Wade kept pushing his point, however, and Mrs. Nieto finally interrupted him by saying, "Mayor Wade, you are being rude. I'm about to terminate."

(Wade is seeking re-election in the fifth district; Mrs. Nieto is running in the second.)

THE 80 LUNCHEON guests, including members of the poverty agency and its board of directors, as well as some city officials and councilmen, also heard a brief comment from local antipoverty director Ed Dienz. Dienz said that if anything went wrong with the luncheon arrangements, it was due to a lack of communication between his agency and the Chicanos.

Earlier, Sanchez spoke informally about the antipoverty effort and was applauded when he said the poverty war will get on the right track only when the poor and the establishment "bury the hatchet and break bread together -- instead of each other's necks."

During the day, he spoke to a group of students at California State College at Long Beach as part of a Chicano celebration on campus, Semana Nacional de la Raza. He also visited a number of antipoverty projects and met with officials at the college.

He and the luncheon guests were entertained by a young mariachi group called Los Monarcas, and by a company of 30 dancers known as La Ballet Folklorico. The dancers are students at California State College at Long Beach.

Suspect stages hunger strike

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Gig Peters, 24-year-old former Huntington Beach lifeguard who is charged with the murder of his parents, was in Orange County Medical Center Friday being force-fed because he won't eat.

Peters' hunger strike forced a week's delay until Wednesday in the start of his retrial in Santa Ana Superior Court.

The defendant is accused of strangling his mother, Flora, 54, and stabbing his father, Charles, 35, on April 21, 1971. The slayings occurred in the couple's Huntington Beach home.

Peters, once a strapping athlete, now is gaunt and confined to a wheelchair. He was paralyzed last Nov. 1 when struck by a deputy sheriff's bullet during what authorities said was an attempt to escape the Orange County Courthouse where he was on trial for the murders.

The shooting resulted in a mistrial order from Superior Court Judge Kenneth Williams, who will preside at Peters' retrial.

Fund OK seen for mental institute

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to approve a $85,000 contract with the Long Beach Neuropsychiatric Institute to provide inpatient services for youthful mental health patients.

The treatment contract is part of the country's program to replace psychiatric beds lost in the destruction of Olive View Hospital during the Feb. 9 earthquake last year.

In a report to the board Friday, Dr. Harry Brickman, director of the Department of Mental Health, said establishment of community-based programs such as the one in Long Beach are considered to be in the best interest of the patient and his family.

He said the contract with the Long Beach facility would be financed through state Short-Doyle funds administered by the county.

$4.5-million suit filed over death of girl, 4

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

The family of a four-year-old Wilmington girl killed during a swap meet at a Long Beach drive-in theater filed a $4.5-million wrongful death suit Friday against RKO Radio Pictures and 22 persons.

The suit, filed in Long Beach Superior Court, charges the defendants with negligence in the death of Dolores Guzman of 721 No. Flint Ave.

She died March 9 when she was run over by a truck during a swap meet at 3800 Santa Fe Ave. The truck was driven by Robert Floyd, 33, of Lawndale.

Mrs. Renalda Vandes Guzman, 26, Ignacio Guzman, 6, and Hugo Valdes, 13, the victim's mother and two brothers, claim in the suit that the pickup truck which killed the child was operated "at a wanton and reckless rate of speed, and in a wanton and reckless manner."

The suit also alleges the theater corporations negligently conducted the swap meet.

Alfred Dobish, attorney for the family, said the truck was exiting in the entrance road at the drive-in when the girl was run over.

In addition to RKO and its subsidiary Pacific Theatres which owns the drive-in and operates the swap meet, the suit names Floyd, Elmer Larson, who is part owner of the truck, and 20 other defendants.

The family is seeking $2.5 million for the loss of the child and the mother is asking an additional $2 million because she "personally heard and witnessed" the death of the girl.

ST. MARY'S TO OPEN NEUROLOGICAL CLINIC

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

An outpatient clinic for persons with complex neurological disorders will open May 16 at St. Mary's Hospital of Long Beach, it was announced Friday by Sister Mary Wilfred, hospital president.

The new service, said by the hospital to be the first of its kind in Southern California, will be directed by Dr. Albert Kakkis, a Long Beach neurologist.

The clinic will be formally known as the Neurological Clinic for Movement and Paroxysmal Disorders.

PATIENTS of all ages will be treated at the clinic. Fees will be based on ability to pay.

Spring Festival set at Wilmington park

An International Spring Festival, sponsored by seven Harbor area recreation centers of the Los Angeles City Recreation and Parks Department, will be held May 21 at 2 p.m. at Banning Park, 401 E. M Street, Wilmington, a spokesman said.

The presentation will feature folk dances, food and a maypole dance.

patients will be used to help offset operating expenses, but Kakkis said that additional financial support will be sought from the community.

DAILY operation of such a clinic is expensive because of the repeated laboratory testing necessary for this type of patient, Kakkis explained.

Individuals or agencies that wish to give financial aid are asked to communicate with St. Mary's Hospital Foundation.

Kakkis formerly was director of Long Beach's community epilepsy clinic and was one of the pioneer researchers of the drug L-dopa, now in general use for the treatment of Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy).

Tidelands revenue $391 million to state in L.B. oil

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

When the 1971-72 fiscal year ends next month, the City of Long Beach will have given more than $391 million to the State of California from the city's tideland oil program, City Manager John R. Mansell said Friday.

The state's share of the tideland oil and gas revenues this fiscal year will reach an estimated $47.6 million by June 30, Mansell said.

Long Beach's share this fiscal year will be an estimated $13.8 million.

The revenues included in both the city and state totals come from the Long Beach Unit, which is the major tideland oil field and operated by Thums Long Beach Co.; the Long Beach Oil Development Co. operations, Parcel A, and the harbor uplands.

THE STATE GETS 100 per cent of revenue from the Long Beach Unit's Tract No. 2, which is state-owned land at the east end of the offshore field, and which this year is estimated at $3.9 million. The state also gets all of the dry gas revenues, which are estimated at $3.8 million this fiscal year.

Mansell's comments were a supplement to the annual report of the city's Department of Oil Properties for the 1970-71 fiscal year, which was released Friday.

The report showed that for the fiscal year ending last June 30, oil and gas revenues from Long Beach tidelands totaled $28.3 million -- and that more than one-half of all State of California petroleum revenues came from the Long Beach tideland operations.

The state's share of Long Beach tideland oil revenues in fiscal 1970-71 was $17,194,451. This was divided as follows: $13.8 million to the Central Valley Water Project Construction Fund, $2 million to the State Water Quality Control Fund, and $1.3 million to the Capital Outlay for Public Higher Education Fund.

The total revenues of $28.3 million from city-administered tidelands was a $5.8-million decrease from the preceding year, the annual report said.

Leonard W. Brock, director of oil properties, said the main cause of the decrease was the fact that Thums Long Beach Co. had completed payments of the $75 million in advance royalties during the preceding fiscal year. Such royalty payments totaled $9 million in fiscal 1969-70, Brock said.

Since the end of the 1970-71 fiscal year, cumulative revenues of Thums have exceeded cumulative costs, the contract is again making payments to the city and state on a net-profit basis.

Shopping center permit OKd for Bixby Ranch

A 12.8-acre shopping center, to be developed by Bixby Ranch Co. at 5900 E. Seventh St., across the street from Veterans Administration Hospital, has been granted a special permit by the Long Beach Planning Commission.

The permit was required because the property is zoned for R-1 residential use, but Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. explained that this is merely a "holding" zone frequently put on property being annexed to Long Beach until development plans are made.

The Planning Commission had granted a special permit last Oct. 7 for a shopping center at the site, Mayer said, but the new project is larger, so a new application was required.

Plans call for a discount-type department store, garden shop, service station, supermarket, bank, savings and loan office, and several retail shops. The center will have 763 parking spaces.

The property is a portion of the Fred H. Bixby Ranch, and is one of the few large undeveloped areas remaining in Long Beach, Mayer said. The shopping center will use only a "small portion" of the vacant land south of Seventh Street and east of Pacific Coast Highway, he said.

Planning commissioners were told that the master plan of the Bixby Ranch Co. calls for multiple residential development on the property and a shopping center complex. This development is in conformance with the city's general plan, Mayer said.

Cerritos tries to keep city growth orderly

By ARLINE SHERER
Staff Writer

While most urban planners must devise ways to remedy past mistakes in a city's development, Gaylord Knapp, Cerritos' new director of environmental affairs, faces a different challenge.

"Cerritos is a city at the threshold. It is in transition from an agrarian to urban area, and there is still open land. We face a challenge of ensuring a development is tailor-made to city's goals and that it is compatible with surrounding developments," said Knapp, who is in charge of planning, parks and public buildings.

Formerly assistant planning director for the city of La Mesa, near San Diego, the 29-year-old Knapp believes planners cannot operate in a vacuum.

"WE WILL encourage comments from people in the community," he said.

While viewing Cerritos as basically a bedroom community, Knapp said the city must have adequate commercial and industrial development.

He is also concerned about quality control of the environment and is looking for ways to prevent or lessen air, water, odor, visual and noise pollution.

Noise pollution encompasses such things as the sound of air conditioners and pool equipment. Visual pollution would include containerized trash receptacles, business signs and some streets, according to Knapp.

Knapp believes one of his department's functions will be to offer guidance to people on how to create better environments for themselves and how to be good neighbors.

"We can give them handy hints. For instance, many people place their air conditioners in windows facing the sideyard. They think of the conditioner only as a device to cool a room and forget that the noise may irritate their neighbors. To avoid problems, they should try to buy a quiet air conditioner and install it on the roof or perhaps in a back window," he said.

Pollution is also a regional problem, according to Knapp, who is working on a masters degree in urban geography.

"Cerritos is a 9-square mile area within a megalopolis. Some problems, such as smog and water pollution must be attacked on a regional and intra-city basis," he explained.

Within Cerritos, Knapp wants to see fair and enforceable environmental protection standards adopted.

The standards would not be an invasion of property rights, he contended:

"PEOPLE have a right to use their property as they see fit as long as it does not detract from the rights of their neighbors."

He also believes the standards will not discourage businesses from coming into the city.

Knapp replaces Arthur Brewer, who resigned in March.

St. John Bosco High School's annual Fiesta is being held today and Sunday from noon to 10 p.m. on the grounds at 13640 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower.

Freeway greening OKd

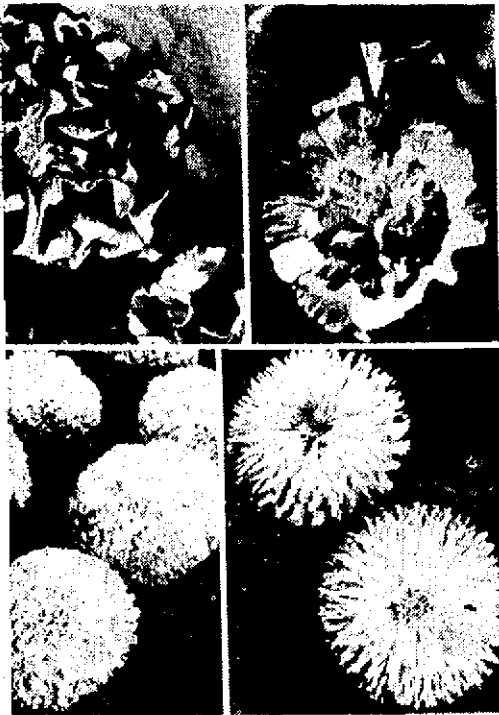

Landscaping of a 2.3-mile section of the Long Beach Freeway between South Gate and Bell at a cost of $240,000 was announced Friday by the State Division of Highways.

Officials said full landscaping on 20-acres of roadside and interchange land from the railroad crossing at South Gate and Slauson Avenue in Bell will be completed by fall.

The project will include planting of 278 trees, 1,497 shrubs and a large number of ground cover plants, a highway division spokesman said. An automatic irrigation system will require installation of 14 miles of plastic and steel pipe, he added.

GARDENING

By Joe Littlefield

Add seasonal touches of splashy color in the garden by planting some annuals and perennials. Fortunately for gardeners, there are annual introductions of such flowers which add interesting color varieties in gardens.

Flower breeder seedsmen, conduct a national All America Selection Awards program annually. The new introductions are grown at 30 widely differing test gardens at universities and industry research centers located in the United States and in Canada. Each new plant has to compete against the most popular variety in its class currently in commerce and voted superior.

THE NEW introductions are:

"Circus" petunia which has large double flowers with a deep salmon color. It is white on outside blossoms. It flowers early. It is excellent as a specimen in container, or for mass planting in a flower bed, edging a walk or driveway. These flowers grow about a foot high and two feet wide.

"Carved Ivory" zinnia develops to about two and one half feet and is a handsome bloom-producing plant. The large double ivory flowers are cactus type. They are not flat and starched-like, but soft and airy looking. They are desirable and excellent for flower arrangements.

Hybrid marigold "Gold Galore" is semidwarf hedge type. Each plant has as many as 5 large full solid-gold blossoms at one time.

The fourth All-American winner is the sturdy hollyhock "Summer Carnival," which grows to be five to six feet tall and provides the needed background in the sunny flower bed. These flowers also are showy against a fence or a wall. The plant grows and blooms from seed the first year. The attractive large

The top 25 per cent of the foliage turns a fiery color, from the combination of yellow, orange, and red. Planted against a white or gray wall, the flaming color draws the viewers' eyes away from any other plants. The colors are more vivid if the plants are viewed across the blue water of the swimming pool with the viewers' backs to the sun.

Coleus, too, add their interesting leafage colors in the shade garden or partial shade. Blossoms should be pinched off as soon as they form.

The showy flowered dahlias generally begin to bloom in the latter part of June, and continue flowering through the fall season. Dahlia roots that have barely sprouted an "eye," or those beginning to grow, should be set out soon as possible. The soil hold needs to be prepared by mixing some organic material plus a low nitrogen fertilizer (or none at all). A generous amount of phosphoric acid and potash should be mixed in the hole bottom. A two inch layer of prepared soil should cover the fertilized soil. The root "eye" (bud) should face up. A stake should be hammered beside the root, prepared soil filled in to within two inches of the ground level, then watered well. As the plant grows, soil is filled in to ground level. The plant eventually is tied to the stake. Dahlias need generous drinks of water. Watch for pests and spray if needed.

single blossoms have colors of scarlet, yellow, deep rose, white, and pink. The plants winter over and bloom annually for a number of years.

WHILE blooming annuals and perennials furnish the most garden color, there are two annuals that provide vivid leafage color. The showiest of foliage is Amaranthus, particularly the "Molten Fire" and "Joseph's Coat," varieties.

Q. — Will you please tell me what to do with African violets. Our plant has a white gum-like substance on it. Someone said it is mealy bugs. I have many violets and have had good luck so far but now I'm worried. Sue Winslow.

Q. — I'm inclined to agree, the white gum-like substance indicates mealy bugs. Several gardeners have had good luck controlling those pests. They made the usual solution of insecticide spray that lists "mealy bugs" on the label. This is not an oil spray. One of them donned a pair of rubber gloves and dunked the african violet upside down into the solution. (This solution had been mixed with water.) The foliage was immersed briefly, swished around gently under the solution, then placed on the back porch to dry. You must wear rubber gloves, wash them thoroughly with soap after the plant treatment. The rubber gloves prevent harm to your hands. Some have used rubbing alcohol, attacking each bug with a "Q-tip" swab. They dip the swab into the alcohol then place a drop carefully on the individual bug.

Q. — You wrote in your Garden Clinic Column about some trees I had purchased. I bought them at a nursery in Downey; enclosed are the tag and a small piece of limb from one of the trees. Two other nurseries also have them, with this name: CUPRESSOCYPARIS LEYLANDI. I've transplanted the trees, but still would appreciate any information you can give me as to special care needed for healthy growth.

A. — Thank you for the botanical name. The top of plant root ball should be level with the surrounding ground. It should not have a saucer-shape depression around it. A ring of soil at the edge of what was the plant hole should be structured as a "dam" to confine the water and force it to soak into the soil that surrounds the root ball. Feed it three times a year from spring into fall with a fertilizer having a higher nitrogen content than it has of phosphorus or potash. Deep water as needed. Two or three times a month hose foliage with sharp stream of water to wash off dust and to discourage pests from setting up housekeeping on the plants. Watch for aphids and spider mites. If no

This will be a show of very exotic plants.

There will be a free drawing for a planted terrarium and planter.

The Southwest Branch of the International Geranium Society is presenting its annual show at Cheviot Hills Recreation Center, 2551 Motor Ave., south of Pico Boulevard in West Los Angeles. The admission-free show is sponsored in cooperation with the Los Angeles Recreation and Parks Department, and will be open to the public from noon to 5:30 p.m. on May 13, and from 9 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. May 14.

This branch of the Geranium Society holds regular meetings on the first Thursday of each month at Plummer Park, 7347 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Visitors are welcome.

A record number of entries is expected this year when the 13th annual Mother's Day Rose and Rose Arrangement Show is held in the Pageant of Roses Garden at Rose Hills Memorial Park in Whittier May 13 and 14.

Last year's show was one of the largest ever staged, drawing more than 1,200 entries and more than 40,000 persons viewed the displays during the show's two-day run.

Entry in the show is open to any amateur rose grower or rose arranger and hundreds of prizes will be offered.

The entries will be on display for the public from 1 to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is free and there is ample free parking located near the garden.

McNitt said entries this year will be accepted from 7 to 10 a.m. on Saturday and a team of rose show officials will be on hand to assist entrants to identify and place their roses in the proper classifications.

Garden jobs to do now

Prune hibiscus as soon as convenient in order to allow new growth to harden before hot weather sets in. Hibiscus can be cut as far down as the gardener likes. For instance, a 10 foot tall shrub can be cut as far down as three feet. The important pruning principle to remember is: always cut to just above a bud (node), above a branch, or down to a crotch of branches. Cuts larger than a half inch should be covered with a pruning compound.

Bearded iris that have finished blooming should not be dug up and divided until about mid-July.

Roses should be watered in the forenoons if possible and not in the late afternoons. Add fungicide to the insecticide when spraying them to prevent possible mildew attack. Frequent light superficial watering creates a humid condition which attracts mildew. Roses should be irrigated 18 to 20 inches deep.

Cut off fading rose blooms. Cut fading flowers off other annuals and perennials as well. Doing this helps new-growth and more flowers to develop later.

PLANTING SUGGESTIONS

Sow lawns or plant sod lawns while weather is still cool.

Set out shrubs, trees both flowering and fruiting from container.

Plant annuals of petunia, zinnia, marigold, aster, Celosia, larkspur, amaranthus, Lobelia, Ageratum, Portulaca, Gaillardia, foxy foxglove, alyssum, balsam, cosmos, Cleome, bachelor button, scabiosa, Torenia, Nicotiana.

Set out perennials of clrysanthemum (mum). Unwin dahlia, dahlia roots with node (eye), Dianthus, carnation, candy-tuft, Nierembergia, hybrid gazania, statice, salvia, Vinca Rosea, shasta daisy, begonia, forgetmenot, Primula Polyanth coral bell.

Sow aster, zinnia, marigold, amaranthus, Cleome, Dimorphotheca, Celosia, cosmos, Arctotis, Alyssum, Gloriosa daisy, Nasturtium Portulaca.

Set out vegetables of cabbage, chive, egg plant, herbs, parsley, pepper.

Sow beans, beets, carrots, celery, mustard, parsley, radish, swiss chard, squash.

Plant ground covers of all kinds soon, to get the roots well started before the hot weather sets in.

Bringing nature up to the demands of the 70's and teaching city dwellers the difference between park abuse and park appreciation is what's happening at Yosemite National Park this summer.

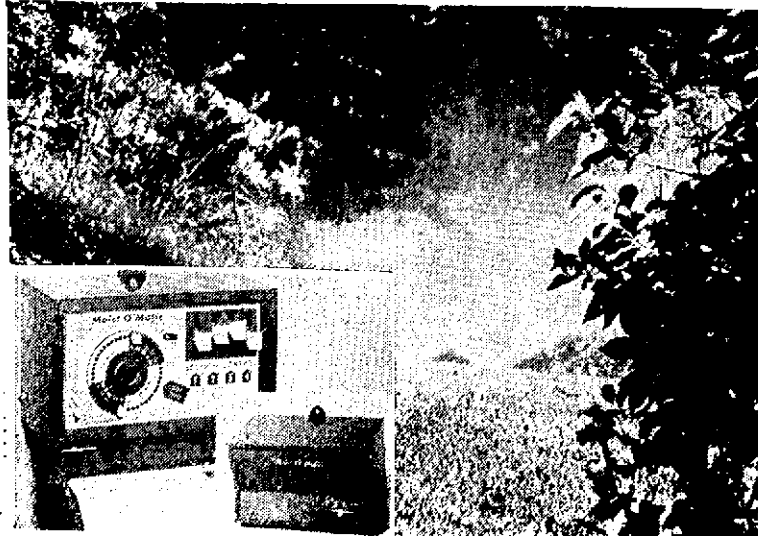

It all stems from the first riot in national park history two years ago and has grown to mammoth proportions — beneficial ones.

'Victory for the people' claimed Fullerton antiwar protesters demonstrate at Honeywell, Inc.

By TOM WILLMAN

War protesters from two Orange County campuses joined forces Friday and, 1,000 strong, laid tense but peaceful siege to offices of Honeywell, Inc., adjacent to California State College, Fullerton.

The 1:30 p.m. march around a modern, nine-story building at 2600 Nutwood Ave., occupied in part by the Honeywell Institute of Information Sciences, followed rallies at the state college and nearby Fullerton Junior College.

The string of protest events began at each campus about 10 a.m. and was marked by a speech by Anthony Russo, defendant in the upcoming Pentagon Papers' legal case at the Fullerton state college.

IT ENDED about 3:20 p.m. when "delegates" from the protest group emerged from the Honeywell offices after meeting with a corporation official to proclaim the demonstration "a victory for the people."

The protesters, some 200 of whom marched two miles from the junior college to a climatic rally at Fullerton State, targeted Honeywell as a major producer of munitions and electronic war materiel.

While an official identified by protest leaders as James Walton, Honeywell branch manager, met for an hour with five protesters' delegates, corporation officials declined to speak to demonstrators sitting in the Honeywell parking lot.

As the demonstration ended and the remnants of the protest group — about 125 persons — returned across the street to the state college at 3:40 p.m., a building security official said Honeywell spokesmen had left for the day.

An April, 1972, leaflet entitled "Should Honeywell Stop Making Munitions," was issued to the press as a response to the protest, however.

The leaflet, which notes

FULLERTON PROTESTORS FOLLOW PARALYZED VET RON KOVIC
Antiwar Marchers Besieged Honeywell Corp. Offices Near Campus

it was "printed for Honeywell employees and other concerned citizens" following earlier protests at other corporation offices, states that "Honeywell has been on record for a number of years as wanting the war ended as quickly as possible."

The statement denies that "manufacturing these weapons makes Honeywell people war criminals" on grounds of legal precedent and adds that the corporation currently produces only an antitank weapon. Honeywell has produced only five of 10 weapons which protesters have credited it with, the statement noted, and four of those, including a mine and a fuel-air explosive, are not now in production.

The statement does not mention electronic weapons-guidance systems, attributed to the corporation Friday by protest leaders, including paraplegic Vietnam veteran Ron Kovic.

Russo, speaking to about 500 persons at the state college, urged listeners to read the Pentagon Papers, where he said the U.S. government's "lies of 10 years and more are catalogued."

By treating Vietnam as two nations — North and South — instead of one, Russo said, the U.S. is violating the 1954 Geneva accords, one of many violations by America which continues today.

Briefly... Movie violence hit; unhappy missionaries

Talking about the church in the community, Sunday is a big day for Rev. Dr. Duane Day and the folks over at First Congregational Church who have worked so hard toward the 11:30 a.m. groundbreaking for Plymouth West, the 11-story low income project which will help transform the downtown area near the church at Third and Cedar.

ESCALATION of motion picture violence, which concerns some parents at least as much as scenes portraying sex, comes in for criticism in "Film Information," which is published by a commission of the National Council of Churches to review movies.

The argument about movie violence is usually between those who say there is no proof that it is reflected in the conduct of those who see it, and, on the other side, those who think that the barrage of casual brutality to human beings shown on movie and TV screens has GOT to have some effect after a while.

"The psychologists will continue their debate," the article in Film Information notes, "but meanwhile the amount and intensity of violence in movies and on TV keeps increasing and one wonders what new 'creative' blood baths await us next."

Going beyond the possible harmful effects on impressionable children, the author of the article asks, "It seems to me that ever increasing violence on the screen raises a conscience question for those of us who see it. What happens to US? How can it help make us more insensitive to the hurts and pains of others? At what point do we rebel and say enough?"

Church leaders, the article suggests, sometimes "ignore their prophetic role and instead emphasize artistic freedom and extol the brilliance by which the human condition is depicted — even at its most violent and bestial extremity."

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM RELIGION

Long Beach, Calif., Sat., May 6, 1972

U.S. POLICY favoring Pakistan over India in the 1971 conflict was wrong, say 130 missionaries to India representing nine Protestant denominations

A joint letter addressed to "Dear Fellow Americans" says "The White House reaction to the conflict has appeared irrational and incomprehensible to Christians, Hindus and Muslims in India," adding that the Indian people could not understand why the U.S. would help a "ruthless military dictatorship."

"We are grieved that the administration supported the anti-democratic forces of West Pakistan... through the continued shipment of U.S. arms for several months after it began its brutal campaign of annihilation."

Bangladesh is a viable entity, they say, and the outcome meant "a new day for India" and a victory for democracy.

It is generally recognized that human nature impels missionaries working in a given country to feel an empathy with the people of that country. Even taking this into consideration, the joint letter of the 130 missionaries may be unprecedented.

The signers represented the United Methodist Church, Assemblies of God, American Baptist Convention, Reformed Church in America, United Presbyterian Church, United Church of Christ, and all three major U.S. Lutheran denominations.

"THE SPHERE of our service is wider and more varied every year. No longer merely a question of new churches established, it is the work of Christianizing our civilization; it is to help solve racial and social problems... to help further economic relations and to improve social and moral conditions."

What's this? A modern church statement in favor of "social action"?

Try 1909, the General Assembly of what is now the United Presbyterian Church, meeting in Denver.

Or how about this one on the growing loss of individualism in modern corporate life:

"Increasingly modern life finds expression in corporate activity, and unless Christianity can conserve and guide these corporate activities it must inevitably count for less and less as an effective force in human life... (the church) is doomed if it keeps discreetly silent or contends itself with amiable generalities on such terrific issues as war and the present economic crisis... the church must insist more emphatically than heretofore that human values must take precedence over all others."

This was 40 years ago, in 1932, depression time, same denomination, same city.

The United Presbyterian Church's 184th General Assembly is back in Denver this year for the fourth time, starting May 16.

P.S. — If we can move into Sydney Harris territory, note the way the meaning of a word can change in 40 years. The Presbyterians in 1932 spoke about "such terrific issues as war and the economic crisis..." Today the word has come to mean "great!" and even "congratulations." But the Presbyterians used it properly. The dictionary definition of terrific is "Terrible, terrifying, exciting fear or awe. Very bad, awful, frightful."

'Harmful material forfeits rights' Methodist pastor hits pornography in L.B.

By LES RODNEY

A Long Beach Methodist minister has declared war on pornography, calling it an offense against God and man "that must not be tolerated."

In a sermon entitled "Pornography in Long Beach," Rev. George M. Mann, pastor of California Heights United Methodist Church, said he is against censorship imposed by majority opinion in matters of taste, and is all for honesty in artistic expression, but that the type of pornography sold in "adult only" bookstores, for example, does not qualify on either ground. Christians, he stated, should assert that all things are not relative, and that some things are clearly wrong.

THE 45-YEAR-OLD minister told the congregation at Orange Avenue and Bixby Road that a store in the vicinity which allegedly sold pornographic material had closed down. The church had conducted a campaign against the store.

"But," Mann said, "there is still a great deal of pornography in Long Beach and we ought to be concerned about those neighborhoods which still have the problem in their midst, particularly the central city."

"Why is pornography dangerous?" he said. "I suppose we could cite a number of reasons, but to me there is one overarching reason. Pornography is dangerous because it gives us a twisted, distorted, perverted view of the image of man. It is very cynical about man. It takes the creature called man and puts him at the lowest possible level of imagination. This is one of the things that's really bugging society today — this is why it's dangerous, I think."

Recognizing human frailty, Mann said "Now let's face it — all of us have a certain fascination with this darkness. Simply because it's dangerous sometimes — and sometimes it's a forbidden thing." The words "Adults Only," he suggested, have become a lure into the forbidden for many young people.

The minister pointed out that legal action against pornography is often complicated and futile. "In Santa Monica, for example, the entire Council of Churches in that city fought to eliminate distribution of pornographic material. They failed utterly."

DEALING with the often sensitive question of censorship, Mann warned against a simplistic approach which would give majority opinion the power to censor anything it did not like. "The majority," he said, "does not have the right to dictate in matters of taste or style."

"But," he went on, "it seems to me we have bent over a bit too far to AVOID censorship so that we have given undue protection to a certain minority whose aim is to exploit human weakness and to profit from it. I believe the rights of any group, no matter how small, must be protected. But that right can be forfeited. We prohibit the production and sale of harmful drugs, and harmful toys, and harmful cars, and many other things — why can we not prohibit the distribution of materials so obscene as to cause emotional damage?"

An argument often used against censorship, he said, "is that we must have honesty in artistic expression, and I agree 100 per cent. Nothing is more sterile or insipid than art which must conform to some rule of state."

"But the material I am talking about here cannot, by the wildest stretch of the imagination, be called art," Mann continued. "And as for honesty, I think it's great so long as we don't make a God out of it! Honesty has become a kind of modern absolute; we can do anything we want as long as we're honest."

The pastor concluded his sermon by stating that "there is a definite stand a Christian can take with regard to this issue. . . . Christian can look at his world today and say that everything is not relative, but that some things are right and some things are wrong."

"SOMEBODY has defined a gold digger as a girl who hates poverty worse than sin. In other words, she's made a choice. Now what do we hate worse? . . . If you're going to take Christ seriously, you know that he had something to say about this: 'Whoever causes a child to stumble . . .'"

"People are still looking for good news, and this multi-billion dollar pornography empire is one of the world's biggest peddlers of bad news. The light it gives to us is darkness. It is an offense to God. It is a stumbling block to the children of men. It must not be tolerated."

Asked this week what reaction he had received to the sermon, Rev. Mann said it had been overwhelmingly favorable.

"I suppose," he said, "that I would be most apt to hear from those who agree on this subject. Still, in all the response, there were just a couple that were negative."

"These," he amplified,

Westminster youngsters win big in district Bible quiz contest

Four sharp teen-agers from Christ Church of Westminster won an overwhelming district victory last week in Bible quiz competition and have their sights set on the regional and national competition.

Only team from Orange County to compete, the quartet won easily at Bakersfield over other Southern teams, and goes to Phoenix in May to compete against teams from Northern California, Arizona and the Rocky Mountain District for the regional title. The Phoenix winner will go to Minneapolis in August for the national championships.

The team that wins it all will win a trip to Israel for the four team members, their coach, their pastor and his wife.

The team includes a brother and sister act from Long Beach, Robin and Renee Stearns, 14 and 13, both at Hughes Junior High; Cheryl Spittler, 13, of Lamb School in Huntington Beach and Debbie Cornell, 15, of La Quinta High, Westminster.

Robin has been a carrier

Ecology Find new meaning to 'Rogate' day

Distribution of packages of seeds to be planted by each worshipping family will symbolize the theme for Ecology Sunday at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 4321 Cerritos Ave., Cypress, at the 8:30, 9:45 and 11 a.m. services.

Traditionally, reminds Rev. Elmer D. Thy, the pastor, the fifth Sunday after Easter in churches that observe the historic "church year" is Rogate Sunday, which means "Pray Ye" Sunday, for hundreds of years on this day, the worshipping congregation would walk out of the church and into the countryside where the crops were just beginning to pop through the soil in the warming days of Spring. Gathering in the fields, the worshippers would kneel and call upon God to bless their crops and bring them a plentiful harvest in the Fall.

Until recently, urbanization has removed much of the meaning of Rogate Sunday, since most worshippers had no crops to ask God to bless — had in fact, seen amber waves of grain only in movies or in a picture magazine. As smog, industrialization and the thoughtless abuse by too many people of our natural resources has begun to destroy wild life, and fish, forests and even some crops, says Thy, a new meaning has come to Rogate Sunday.

Christians are finding new meaning in David's words, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein," are finding new understanding of the first recorded words of God to man, Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed . . . and every tree." Christians are discovering that when God suggested that man "subdue the earth," He didn't mean that man should destroy it, says the pastor.

El Dorado church wins two awards

El Dorado Park Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd., has won two awards. It was named one of the ten most beautiful buildings in the Long Beach area. Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the judging was based upon upgrading and significant improvement to the area, landscape design, architectural pleasing design, and outstanding continued maintenance.

The second commendation was in recognition of the church's "Sunday Telecast," which won first place in a national competition as "best weekly series on cable television in the nation." Among the 500-plus stations entering the contest, CATV Channel 8 of Long Beach won nine first-place merits. The "Sunday Telecast" is filmed at the church by the CATV crew under the direction of Producer Chris Donovan.

Confident living
So she married someone else

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The mental picture or image that you hold of yourself is like to determine what you will become. Picture yourself as an unattractive, defeated, down-beat person, and it is quite possible other people will take you at your own self-appraisal. The attitude you take about yourself can either make you or break you.

Of course we should not become egotists, but a wholesome respect for yourself is a much healthier attitude than thinking of yourself as inferior. Have a normal liking for yourself and you will like other people and they will like you. Your attitude will be confident and relaxed. That word "attitude" is most important, for your own attitude is at the root of your difficulty if you are lonely, unhappy and have an inferiority complex.

ALL HUMAN beings desire friendship. They want to be needed and respected. But those who have downgrading inferior feelings often cut themselves off from others; they become loners, afraid to be part of a group. As a result they feel neglected and left out and their lives are pretty empty. Such unhappy people can hardly expect others to come seeking them out, for people assume they just don't care to be bothered and they shy off.

I know a young man who from childhood had marked inferiority feelings. They probably stemmed from his father who openly called him stupid and told him he would never amount to anything. At 17 he fell in love with the most popular girl in high school. She was a lovely, intelligent girl, already on her way up the ladder of success. This young man worshipped her from afar, for he didn't think himself worthy of her.

"I was afraid that she would reject me," he said, "and so I never let her know my feelings about her. We graduated as mere acquaintances. Even though I longed to know her better, I felt so terribly insecure and beneath her. So I never asked her out. She went off to college and I enlisted in the Army and that was the end of something that never even got started. I never told her how much I respected and admired her."

The young man told me how he took the test for Officers Candidate School in the Army and to his amazement came out top man. "For the first time in my life," he said, "I felt I wasn't stupid. Perhaps I could be a success after all."

So after the Army he went to college and is now controller of a large accounting firm. "The sad thing about it all," he concluded, "is that because I underrated myself I missed out on so much. But, he added, "Better late than never!" Now the young man has a sure feeling about himself and gets along well with people. "I actually feel at home with them because I know they too have problems and are really no better than I. I've learned that people won't reject me if I am honest and open with them."

"What ever happened to that girl in high school?" I asked, being the type who likes happy endings.

"Will you stop saying 'amen' to everything I say?"

"FUNNY you should ask," he said, "for we recently met at a party after not seeing each other for years. Of course we reminisced about high school days. I couldn't believe my ears when she laughed and said, 'You know, Tom, I kept hoping you would ask me out in those days; I had quite a crush on you!' I confessed that I longed to date her all of that last year in high school. 'Really?' she exclaimed, 'I assumed you didn't want to be bothered with me!' To think I cut myself off from something that might have been the greatest thing in my life!" he lamented.

"Well, if you still care about her, you've learned your lesson," I said. "Why don't you ask her out now?"

"No," he sighed, "she is happily married and has a young child. My inferiority attitude spoiled all that years ago! But," he said happily, "those days are gone forever. I'm living for today and it's great. I'm no longer afraid of people because I'm no longer afraid of myself. I like myself and maybe that's the best attitude in the world."

Unitarians fill pulpit, will welcome new pastor

Rev. Rexford Joseph Styzens has been called as pastor of Long Beach Unitarian Church, it was announced this week by Terry Atzen, chairman of the board of trustees.

Styzens, 38, will speak from the pulpit of the church at 5450 Atherton St. for the first time Sunday at 10:30 a.m. on the topic "Life Is No Problem."

His appointment ends a year of interim ministry since the departure of Rev. Dr. John Nicholls Booth, who is currently filling interim ministries in various parts of the country, lecturing and writing, while maintaining his residence in Los Alamitos. The final period of Booth's eight-year ministry here was marked by controversy stemming from his strong advocacy of the Arab cause against Israel.

Styzens comes to Long Beach from the First Parish of Watertown, Mass., where he had been the pastor since September, 1969.

A graduate of Shimer College, Mount Carroll, Ill., he received his theological degree from the University of Chicago. He has served at the Unitarian Church in Davenport, Iowa and at First Unitarian Church in Sioux City, Iowa, where he was ordained.

Styzens has been a director of religious education at the People's Church of Chicago and has done marital and family counseling. In his last pastorate, he was co-founder of Watertown Citizens for Participation Politics. In Davenport he served as chairman of the Youth Commission on the Community Welfare Council, was incorporator and trustee of the Community Action

REV. STYZENS

Program and was an officer of the Iowans Against the Death Penalty commission.

In his denomination, Styzens has been secretary-treasurer of the Bay West Fellowship for Renewal, president of Prairie States Unitarian Universalist Association and a trustee in the Midwest Unitarian Universalist Conference.

He will relocate in the Long Beach area with his wife Sybil and children Jennifer, 8, and Joseph, 5.

FROM
PULPIT
Dr. Frank Collins
Careful attention must be given to the Word of God by every believer. Paul warned the Christians of Colosse when he wrote, "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ." False teachers are just as prominent in our day as they were in the Apostle's time. Without a working knowledge of the Bible, you will find yourself
"tossed to the fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine."
God's means of establishing you in the truth is through His New Testament Church.
He has given to the church pastors, teachers, and evangelists for the purpose of building up the believers. It is God's plan for every born-again believer to be a part of a Bible teaching church. You would find Calvary Baptist to be the end of your search for a ministry where you could be grounded in the Word.
Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

Tourists to USSR offered Bibles TULSA, Okla. (AP) — If anyone is planning a trip to the Soviet Union, an agency here called "Russian Bible" will send him free — on request — a Russian translation of the Bible to take with him, and give to someone there.
The agency made that offer in noting that the Soviet Council of Religious Affairs has stated that each tourist is allowed to bring one Bible into the country, where there is a shortage of Bibles.

GOINGS ON

Billy James Hargis and his "All American Kids" will put on their three-act musical extravaganza "Seeing It Right" Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in the Long Beach City College auditorium, 4901 E. $60,000 sculpture undamaged by 'theft'

No damage has been done to the Claire Falkenstein sculpture, the $60,000 fountain which is to be installed at the Long Beach Museum of Art, City Manager John R. Mansell has told councilmen.

Councilman Thomas J. Clark, referring to a recent newspaper story about the theft of materials connected with the sculpture, asked if it had been damaged.

Mansell said the sculpture itself was not touched, but that the thieves had stolen some of the fittings which will carry water when the fountain is installed.

The Falkenstein sculpture was donated to the city by Dr. Louis L. Heyn.

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to award a $20,369 contract to the John W. Tiedemann Co. of Whittier for paying roadways and a service yard at the South Coast Botanic Garden in Rolling Hills Estates.

In a report Friday, County Engineer Harvey T. Brandt said the Tiedemann bid, lowest of six offered, was $2,231 below his department's original estimate.

He said the paving job will take about 30 days.

Sears-Cerritos buzzing toward Wednesday opening

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

Sears' newest store will open Wednesday in Cerritos. Activity in and around the new building, at 183rd Street and Gridley Road, has been feverish for months. Last week, it turned into what could be described as "organized hubbub."

Announcement of the opening date came at the height of one of the largest movements of merchandise in Sears' history.

Floyd Bartlett, manager of the new store, said shipments of merchandise, which began with a trickle several weeks ago, will continue on to opening day only now "on a truck-after-truck schedule."

The fleet of trucks, Bartlett added, if lined up bumper to bumper would create a solid line more than a mile and a half long — and that isn't counting scores of other trucks carrying manikins, office furniture, clothing racks and other fixtures to the modernistic store.

The giant task of stocking shelves and arranging floor displays is going like clockwork, the manager said.

The new store's design places all freight and service facilities below ground level. The receiving dock is at the base of a long underground ramp, so that trucks can be unloaded out of sight of street-level traffic.

Emphasis on fashion will be a mark of the new Sears, Bartlett said.

The facility includes the main sales building, an automotive center (which was opened previously), a seasonal sales, garden shop and package pickup area.

Of course the new Sears will have all those departments common to most large department stores — along with some the others do not yet have, Bartlett announced.

For instance, the store will feature charm schools for teen-age girls, an optical shop and, surprisingly, a car rental service.

Jobs in offing

Jobs in local insurance offices are in the offing for 27 Long Beach high school seniors who have completed courses in insurance training.

The courses, covering private passenger automobile insurance rating and dwelling fire and home owners rating, were conducted by the Long Beach Unified School District with the co-sponsorship of the Independent Insurance Agents Assn. of Long Beach.

Three graduates have been placed in part time jobs in local insurance offices, others have signed up for full time work during summer vacation, and others are being interviewed for part time work, according to Raymond Genet, president of the insurance group.

The instructors for the classes completed last week at Wilson High School were Mrs. Sherlie Weeks and Drew Elright of the insurance association Co-ordinators were Michael J. Fisher, industry-education coordinator for the board of education, and Mrs. Eulane Allgood, Wilson business education chairman.

Stop jawboning

Business Week magazine has urged the Price Commission to go beyond "general jawboning" and clamp down on the inflationary price spiral.

In an editorial in its current issue, the publication warned: "Whether Phase II of President Nixon's New Economic Program ends in success or disaster will depend in large measure on how the Price Commission performs in the next two or three months."

The editorial went on to say that "the track record of the Price Commission since the end of the Phase I freeze last November has been disappointing." A "steady, persistent" uptrend of prices at the rate of about four per cent a year has been the result.

"If this continues, it will make a bad joke of the 2.5 per cent inflation rate the commission has established as its target. What is worse, it will undermine the gradually emerging stability the Pay Board is trying to impose on wage costs," it added.

Noting that both industrial and farm prices have been climbing, the magazine urged the commission to decide "whether its rules for passing along cost increases have been too liberal and whether its enforcement has been too weak."

A hurried review of its policies, like talk about tougher enforcement, is not the answer while the Consumer Price Index continues to rise, the magazine said.

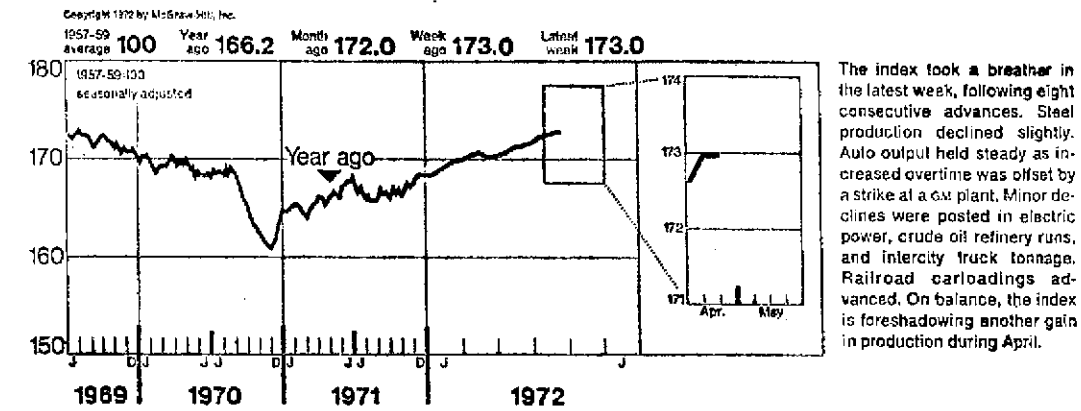

"The commission must not stop with a mere show of activity and some general jawboning. It should tighten the clamps until it achieves real control of the situation."

INDUSTRY WEEK

Housing plans 'run well'

The nation's housing industry has been running so well for more than a year that forecasts formerly termed "unreasonably optimistic" have turned out to be on target, "Industry Week" reported.

Housing starts last year slightly exceeding the "magic" 2 million units forecast by George Romney, U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, who is forecasting about 2.2 million new units in 1972. This would be a 7 per cent increase over last year's high rate of 2.05 million units, the business magazine said.

Through the last half of the 1960s, private housing starts waltzed around the 1.5 million level, while economists proclaimed that 2 million units were needed each year, and would eventually be built.

A new house means business for more than just the builder. It makes jobs for labor and markets for materials, carpeting, furniture, and appliances. Industries supplying these goods are feeling a strong secondary impact from the high level of housing starts.

Many home builders and economists expect new housing starts to fall from current levels, but only in prelude to another boom that will carry well past mid-decade.

Housing starts last year showed sporadic month-to-month changes, but the trend has clearly been up, and high by historical standards. Even the drop in March this year to an annual rate of 2.36 million new starts from February's 2.68 million is no reason for panic, most watchers agree, because the rate of building was still 22 per cent ahead of a year ago when, even at that point, it was historically high.

If housing starts slacken, it will be partly because of consumer reluctance to take on an obligation. There is plenty of mortgage money around, and all kinds of subsidies, but still, at the end of the line, somebody's got to take the house and make monthly payments, an economist pointed out.

Increasing costs are another factor that could dampen demand, "Industry Week" noted. The average new house this year will cost between $25,800 and $28,000 — up from $25,200 last year.

Partly as a result of cost considerations, town houses and condominiums are increasing the fastest of all new units. They are generally lower priced, and they appeal to the young family.

While nonavailability of mortgage money has in the past plagued the housing market, that currently is no problem. The flow of money into savings institutions is continuing. Mortgages are readily available, and they probably will be through 1972.

However, mortgage money can be expected to cost more as the year goes on. The low point was last winter. A tighter money period lies ahead, "Industry Week" was told. A money shortage by mid-1973 and higher mortgage interest rates are expected by some economists.

BUSINESS MIRROR

No spring stock blossom

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Everything warms up in May, they say, but not in the stock market. A look at some of the performance figures for this fifth month is chilling enough to send a shiver through the hottest speculator.

Stocks just don't seem to blossom in spring, and that is one major reason why some otherwise bullish forecasters tend to be a bit cautious in what they say right now.

There is a name for what happens in the next two months, the May-June sell-off. In every year but one since 1953 the Dow Jones Industrial Average has reached a lower figure some time in June than it attained in May.

The exception was in 1958, when the market was rising at a rate just about as fast as any since World War II. Still, the percentage change from the May high to the June low was only 0.4 per cent in that year.

YOU DON'T have to search for what are alleged to be explanations. Instead, your choices are so numerous that, in effect, they leave you in the same situation as moonologists, who find themselves with so much data that they can't reach conclusions.

The most simplistic of these assumes that the big investors get ready for an idle summer by ridding their portfolios of any stocks that might intrude decisions on their summer play. It is sometimes called the pre-vacation slump.

Properly assessed, however, this explanation is about as realistic as that sometimes given by big city mayors when billion dollar corporations move to the suburbs, "so the president can be nearer the golf course."

Nor is it explained by noting that spring cleaning is a fact of nature, to be observed in attic and yard as well as in the portfolio of stocks.

WHAT appears to be a more scientific explanation is offered by The Stock Trader's Almanac, which puts market activity in graph form in so many ways that you have your choice of almost any interpretation.

It claims that "the most important observation to be made from a chart showing the average monthly change in market prices since 1955 is that institutions determine the trading patterns in today's markets."

In January, April and July — the beginning of new business quarters — the Almanac claims, the institutions are active buyers.

So why isn't October also a strong month? It's a tight money month, a time for portfolio tax switching, the beginning of the new year year, the last month before election. Satisfied?

And what about November and December, which are probably the strongest months of all? That says the Almanac, probably represents the action of corporate and other pension funds, which sometimes receive their funds in one lump at this time of year and rush to invest them.

INTERESTING perhaps, but probably of little significance this year. This is a presidential election year and that distorts — well, changes — everything.

Says the Almanac: "Summer rallies that ordinarily start sometime in June most years, seem to begin one month earlier during Presidential election years. As a result, May has often been an excellent buying point in those years."

If you tend to dismiss all this as the work of mere chance, you still must be prepared to admit the following, which can be demonstrated: There are clearly defined market seasons that may be called Winter Doldrums, Spring Rise, May-June Sell-off, Summer Rally, Indian Summer Slump, Year-end Advance."

That's how Wright Advisory Service describes them. As to why they occur: Well, you can take your choice of perhaps a thousand explanations. And then you might not be able to prove one of them.

he new plant will be equipped with a "tail gas Dallas, has been awarded a contract for construction of the sulfur recovery plant.

The new plant will be equipped with a "tail gas scrubber system" that incorporates the most recently developed techniques in air pollution prevention.

Installation of the scrubber system will permit the plant to operate in compliance with new Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District regulations which become effective in mid-1973, Mobil spokesmen said.

Estimated cost of the sulfur plant and scrubber system is in excess of $10 million.

Investors' conclave is May 25

Let buyer beware still good advice

By CHET CURRIER

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Caveat emptor: Let the buyer beware.

In Latin or English it is good advice, but sometimes a little difficult to put into practice.

I read consumer magazines. I check warranties and dutifully mail in the little cards within three days of the date of delivery. I shop around before I buy.

But after the last few weeks — during which I took my first trip abroad and "celebrated" a birthday — I'm in the market for a new approach.

The story begins in England on the morning of that birthday.

FOR MORE than two hours my wife and I tried unsuccessfully to start the car we had obtained a day and a half before from a rental agency.

The company eventually provided us with a substitute and reduced our $50 bill by about $8. But by the time we left the technicians worrying over their vehicle in that rainy parking lot, however, we had had to cancel most of our plans for the last day of a brief and expensive vacation.

"Let's not let it bother us," my wife counseled. "We've lost some time. We've had a great trip otherwise. We're bound to have some problems."

Unlucky words, those last.

SKIP NOW about 24 hours onward to our return home, and our discovery that our $400 television set had celebrated a birthday of its own. Less than two months after the expiration of its one-year warranty, it had stopped producing a picture.

"You've got problems," said the man who came to take it away, muttering something about high voltage deficiencies and discarding a couple of blackened tubes.

He wasn't our only visitor that week. There was the man from a block down the street, who came to tell us there was a package from a department store-mail order firm in his driveway.

"I'm glad I found you. It's been sitting there about a week," he said.

"Ah," my wife said. "That's the cabinet my parents ordered for your birthday. It was supposed to come last week. We've been trying to get the store to tell us what happened to it."

IT WASN'T long after we finished laboriously lugging home that large largesse when the mailman brought another gift.

Not many days before, he had come with a letter from the state Revenue Department, suggesting that the $30 consultant had been wrong when he advised us how to file our tax returns.

This time he had a book I had been waiting very much, sent by my mother from Pennsylvania.

Douglas quintet get design patent

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Five engineers at Douglas Aircraft Co. in Long Beach are getting a patent on the new DC10 trijet transport, which they helped to design.

Patent No. 3,566,211 will be granted May 30 to Richard T. Cather, William M. Douglass, Frederick D. Hess Jr., John Morris and James E. Roberts.

Basis for the patent is the unique straight-through arrangement of the mid-tail engine. Previous designs using an engine in the tail have aircoops located above the engine with an S-shaped duct leading to the jet intake.

THE PATENT will be in the name of the five engineers, but will be assigned to Douglas Aircraft Co. by prior agreement. The firm will not pay royalties for the use of the patent in building DC10s, but any other firm building a similar plane will be required to pay.

The patent - holding engineers will share a percentage of the franchise royalties.

Douglas spokesmen pointed out McDonnell Douglas was required to pay royalties to Sud Aviation of France for use of the French firm's patent on the aft-fuselage arrangement of engines on the DC9 twinjet transport.

Sud Aviation had patented a similar arrangement on its earlier Caravelle transport design.

WEEK'S TRANSACTIONS

NEW YORK (AP) — American stock
Exchange trading for the week:

By CHARLES J. ELIA

Q. I am a holder of 200 shares of a stock that was formerly traded on the New York Stock Exchange. This company had recorded sales and earnings in 1971 and I have been receiving regular dividends of $1 per share.

A. However, its parent company has had serious financial problems, so here I am with a solid company dominated by a weak one. In ordinary circumstances I might profit by a dividend boost or sell the shares at a profit. But in this case am I really stuck with it, as my broker implies?

A. You may not get the price you'd like to get for the stock but I doubt that you're "stuck" with it. There is an over-the-counter market in your stock and your broker should be able to execute a sale for you through one of the dealers making a market in this issue.

It may not be an easy trade for him, I'll grant you. But the pink sheets, where thousands of unlisted stocks are quoted by the brokers making markets in them, do list several firms with indicated interest in the stock and your broker should be able to do business with one of them.

At latest report the company whose shares you own — American Bank Note — was 80 per cent controlled by B.T.B. Corp., formerly known as B.T. Babbitt, which holds 86 per cent of the outstanding common and 34 per cent of the preferred.

B.T.B., at last report, was revamping its finances and credit lines and disposing of certain assets with the eventual aim of resolving its financial problems and making American Bank Note its main business.

In a situation like this, I'd suggest a letter to the treasurer of the present company, asking him for a bid directly from the company on your holdings of American Bank Note before you go to the market. But even if the company's not interested in buying it in, your broker should be able to get a trade completed with one of the market makers in the pink sheets.

Q. WE BOUGHT STOCK in a company last December and went up to $3 a share. It subsequently went to $8 and the president announced rights would be offered — one right per share. The president of the company owns over half the stock. Could this be a management manipulation? We own 1,300 shares. Should we take up the rights?

A. If the rights offering is your only reason for suspecting manipulation it's the most groundless of reasons. Stockholders of many companies are trying to get or keep pre-emptive rights; you should count this an advantage, not a reason to suspect the company's motives.

The offering of rights is part of the method being used by your company to raise more money. That offer is made in accordance with the theory that present shareholders should have the privilege of maintaining their proportionate share of ownership in the company.

Losses in dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fire losses in the United States declined by 3.8 per cent in February to $168 million, the Insurance Services Office reported. The drop from last February was a much more gratifying 16.5 per cent.

Cars recalled

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. has recalled 396,000 of its 1972 Torino and Mercury Montego cars for modification of rear axle assemblies.

MAURICE WEISS
Unretiring Candidate

Maurice Weiss, 55, of 3456 El Dorado Dr., is a candidate for city prosecutor of Long Beach in Tuesday's primary election.

Weiss pledged that he would make the position "one of work, not of retirement, which I believe presently exists."

He said the job should not be totally delegated to subordinates to make decisions that should be made by the elected official. "How many people involved in misdemeanor matters have seen our present city prosecutor?" Weiss asked. "For that matter how many attorneys have seen him on legal matters?"

Noting that the prosecutor's job is essentially that of prosecuting misdemeanors or complaints, Weiss said an incumbent should concern himself personally in such matters of a more serious nature, short on felonies. Some citations can be quite serious involving large fines, confinement, loss of driving license and other penalties that can be quite severe, he said.

Weiss said an incumbent should set an example of leadership and activity but opined that "a person in government service for a long time such as the present incumbent, who has been in the office for a number of terms and who was employed in the office previously, cannot do the required job.

Weiss said he dug ditches in the WPA program of depression years, worked in steel mills and played football for the then-great teams of Duquesne University in the middle '30s. He obtained his LL.B. degree and was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar at the age of 23.

He said he has been an attorney in a number of government agencies. In World War II he was assigned to the prosecution section of the Fourth Engineer Special Brigade terminating his service in the claims section of the Armed Forces of the Western Pacific. He has been engaged with Standard Oil Co. and as an attorney with Melvin Belli in San Francisco.

He has been in private law practice in Long Beach for almost 10 years. He has one child who graduated from California State College, Long Beach, and one attending school in San Diego.

Pirate pitcher maced by cop

Combined News Services

CINCINNATI — Dock Ellis, controversial pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates was sprayed with chemical mace by a Riverfront Stadium policeman at the players gate Friday night.

The policeman signed a warrant charging Ellis with disorderly conduct. Ellis was scheduled to appear in Hamilton County Municipal Court Saturday morning.

Ellis, whose eyes were puffed by the mace, was finally permitted to enter and dressed for the Pirates' game against the Cincinnati Reds.

Capt. Norbert Evans of the Cincinnati Private Police said patrolman David Hatter sprayed the mace on Ellis after the player failed to produce proper identification, and tried to force his way into the stadium by making a gesture toward Hatter with a bottle in a bag.

Hatter at this point "drew his gun but did not point it at Ellis," according to Capt. Evans.

Hatter then put his gun back into his holster, "feeling he could control the situation better with mace," said Capt. Evans.

Shortly thereafter, Ellis was squirted with mace, but was not injured and walked into the dressing room.

Capt. Evans said that "Hatter was subjected to verbal abuse which no human being should endure."

Ellis said the guard panicked. "Maybe I looked too wild to be a ball player," Ellis said in the Pirates' locker room after he had ordered photographers not to take any pictures of him. "I just had my hair blown out (Afro cut). This is beautiful. It makes me hate better."

The Pirates had not commented on whether any disciplinary action would be taken against Ellis.

Evans said it was a partially filled wine bottle.

Evans said that Ellis and teammates Willie Stargell and Rennie Stennett walked up to the gate together, and Stargell and Stennett showed proper identification. Ellis produced only a World Series ring with his name on it, Evans said.

Evans said that Ellis made a gesture with the bottle and then with a clenched fist.

WILT SNARES ANOTHER

Lakers' NBA title just cork pop away

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

NEW YORK — After a decade of frustration, the Lakers gallantly reached the threshold of their first NBA championship Friday night by rallying to whip the New York Knicks, 116-111, in overtime.

In sweeping the Knicks on their home court to take a 3-1 lead, the Lakers are confident they can finally pop their champagne corks Sunday night at the Forum after failing in seven previous championship finals dating back to 1962.

Friday's game was the type the Lakers have lost so many times over the years. But the poise and the talent are evident this time and if they didn't crack under Friday's immense pressure, they probably never will.

Ironically, perhaps the man who emerged as the hero—Jim McMillian—is a player who doesn't know the frustration of the past. A second-year pro, he is operating in his first championship series.

The 24-year-old who grew up on the sidewalks of New York scored the first three baskets of the overtime to ease the pressure after a sensational tip-in by Walt Frazier with three seconds left in regulation had turned the momentum toward New York.

Each of McMillian's baskets came in a nose-to-nose confrontation with his defender. They came, too, out of design by coach Bill Sharman and they were set up with the full realization that McMillian had not shot well up to that point.

McMillian was 5-for-20 from the field when Shar-man—who always seems to make the right move—told his young forward to challenge Bill Bradley, who had five fouls.

Challenge he did. While his teammates practically stood by idly, McMillian tried every fake possible and couldn't shake Bradley. So he just muscled his shots up and into the basket.

"What a talent he is," Jerry West said of McMillian. "He's so strong and so confident. I'll tell you, he shot those shots right through Bradley."

McMillian, 23, wasn't the only hero, however. West delivered in the clutch, netting 20 points; Gail Goodrich added 27, including the game-clincher at 0:42; Happy Hairston had 18 points and 19 rebounds; and Wilt Chamberlain... well, what can you say that hasn't already been spoken about this 35-year-old marvel?

Ryan KOs Brewers, whiffs 14

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Friday night was Bat Night at Anaheim Stadium, so the Angels went out and got themselves a bat.

They got him by sending relief pitcher Tom Murphy to the Kansas City Royals for Bob Oliver a first baseman-outfielder who hit 27 home runs and drove in 99 in 1970.

Oliver couldn't make it to Anaheim in time for Friday night's game, however, and the Angels had to rely on the three-hit pitching of Nolan Ryan and seven timely hits to best Milwaukee, 4-0, before a crowd of 26,061.

"We've been looking for a right-handed power hitter for some time," Angel general manager Harry Dalton said. "I believe Oliver will give us some sock and we had some pitching to give up, so the deal was made."

Ryan's performance made the deal look even better.

Winning for the first time since April 18 when he beat Minnesota, 2-0, Ryan (2-2) survived periodic wildness to keep the Brewers under control with a near-Angel record of 14 strikeouts.

Ryan drew two hasty visits from Angel manager Del Rice during the course of the game, but was in trouble only in the fifth when Dave May reached Knicks need miracle Dr. Frazier says patient 'critical'

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

NEW YORK — Walt Frazier was painfully blunt.

Examining the faint, almost inaudible heartbeat of the New York Knicks late Friday evening, Dr. Frazier made a diagnosis. "Gentlemen," he addressed the men of the media who surrounded him, "the situation is critical. The patient is about to die."

Corroborating testimony was offered by a grim-looking Jerry Lucas who played the entire 53 minutes in vain.

"It was a big loss," Lucas murmured in the pall that enveloped the New York dressing quarters.

In addition to finding themselves perched on the edge of the elimination, the psychological damage resulting from the 116-111 overtime loss may be irreparable.

To their credit, the

Derby Riva Ridge's first battle for Triple Crown

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Riva Ridge, a game colt named after a battle in which his owner fought, goes forth to contest the 98th running of the Kentucky Derby today against 15 rivals not only as the heavy betting favorite but Channel 2, 2 p.m. as a living test of his trainer's new theory about winning the Triple Crown.

Riva Ridge was the advance 9-5 favorite for the "run for the roses," which is expected to be watched at 2:32 p.m. (PDT) post time by the usual Churchill Downs crowd of more than 100,000.

Hold Your Peace, a little colt known for all-out efforts in every race, was the second choice at 3-1 and No Le Haze, a come-from-behind runner whose Spanish name means "it doesn't matter," was the third choice at 5-1.

There was a chance that the race would be marred by rain. The forecast was for possible late afternoon thundershowers in the Louisville area, with the overall chance of rain sometime on Derby day put at 30 per cent.

If all 16 3-year-olds go to the post in America's premier turf classic, the gross purse will be $182,800 — with $140,300 of that going to the winner. That's a pretty tidy sum to overlook, and Lucien Laurin, Riva Ridge's Cannadian-born trainer, wasn't exactly overlooking it. But more than any other trainer in this race or in recent Derbies, he very frankly was thinking of the Derby as the first of the Triple Crown races, rather than for its cash and glory alone.

There hasn't been a winner of the Triple Crown — the Derby, the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, and the Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park — in 24 years, since the great Citation in 1943.

Laurin thinks he knows why he thinks trainers of other outstanding horses have concentrated on the Derby at the expense of the other two classics.

Laurin has given Riva Ridge only four starts this year and is hoping to keep him in top form for all three races.

The chief problem facing Riva Ridge in the pre-race planning was tactical — the absence of sprinters from the field may mean he'll have to set his own pace. The same may be true of Hold Your Peace, the only other starter known for "early foot."

The field was loaded with colts who crank up late in the race — indicating there might be a rousing finish.

"There isn't any speed in the race, so Riva Ridge may have to go out early,"

Even barefoot skiing

Marine Stadium center of activity

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

Drag-boat racing fans going to the Marine Stadium this morning will see a mixture of intercollegiate rowing, boat racing preliminaries and possibly some barefoot skiing practice.

Although the weekend was booked by the Long Beach Recreation Department for the National Drag-Boat Assn.'s Western Regionals, there was a mixup in dates: California State Long Beach and USC had reserved the stadium for its eight-oared shells on Saturday.

So, the first thing fans will see at the Stadium this morning will be the race between the two schools at 9 a.m. As for the boats and the barefoot skiers, there will be preliminaries today in 15 classes of drag boats. About 250 boats are expected here for the trials.

The Sunday program will get under way at noon with a flag-raising ceremony. Barefoot skiers Craig Vestermark, 27, Long Beach fireman, and Russell Johnston, 18, West Covina, will attempt to break Wayne Wilms' world record of 71.65 mph immediately following the Sunday opening ceremony. After that, the hot boats will go for the rest of the afternoon and their drivers will be trying for records.

Larry Hill, Fresno, and his famous Mr. Ed, which has traveled 202.46 mph, will try for an even faster mark. Competing will be Larry Schwabenland driving Climax, Dwight Bale in Down 'N' Out, Elmer Youngblood, Hurst, Tex., in Blown Thang and Mike DuBiel in a new boat, provided he gets a green light from his doctor.

DuBiel was in Wild Hare three weeks ago when the boat flipped and was destroyed. He suffered four broken ribs and numerous abrasions. Wild Hare's owner, Warren Russell, immediately made a new boat available for DuBiel.

Such boat names as Crucifier, Swamp Rat Again, Joker's Wild, Double-O-Eight and Frantic Rat will be in the pits.

Price of admission today is $2. On Sunday, it will be $3. Kids 10 and under will be admitted free if accompanied by parents.

Gambling Irwin leads at Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hale Irwin, complaining of dry, gusty winds and short drives but thankful for his putting game, Friday shot his second consecutive 5-under-par 67 and surged to a three-stroke lead in the $125,000 Houston Open.

Irwin, who won the 1967 NCAA golf championship at Colorado where he was also a standout cornerback on the football team, collected seven birdies on the strength of a sure putter and accurate iron shots. His 10-under-par 134 at the halfway mark overtook first-day leader Chuck Thorpe.

Thorpe, who shot an opening-round 66, also complained of the 25-mph gusts along with an upset stomach. He fell into second place behind the 26-year-old Irwin with a one-under 71 for 137. The Detroit golfer, one of the few blacks on the tour, suffered two bogeys but managed an eagle with a 40-foot putt on the par-5, 556-yard 13th hole.

Irwin, of Boulder, Colo., had birdie putts of 6, 10, 3, in 4 and 1 feet and managed a 20-foot sand wedge shot on the par-4, 393-yard 11th hole for another birdie.

The youthful Irwin was most pleased that his "gambling instinct" paid off on the 449-yard fourth hole for a par four. He drove into the trees and risked a 2-iron shot into an opening about 30 yards away.

"The ball ticked a few trees on the way out but rolled onto the green," he said. "That was probably my best shot of the tournament."

"The ground is getting hard and it's difficult to make a club selection. I didn't feel near as good over the ball (as Thursday) but I putted better."

Thorpe, who joined the tour in January, left for a quick medical checkup and said he would try playing on a full stomach today.

"I'm not trying to make excuses, but my stomach is in a strain and the wind is really blowing hard," he said. "If I don't make the cut I'll be the first black man to ever kill himself on the golf course."

49er crew eyes unbeaten season

Cal State Long Beach's crew, under the direction of first-year coach Ed Graham, can complete an unbeaten season today by defeating USC.

The crews will collide on Marine Stadium's 2,000-meter course this morning. If the 49ers win, they will finish their regular season with a 5-0 record.

Fresh teams meet at 9 a.m., junior varsities at 9:15, varsities at 9:30.

The 49ers have next week off, but return on the 19th and 20th of May to host the Western Sprints at Marine Stadium.

The Mazda Sport Truck combines the dash and handling of a sports car with the room and convenience of a truck.

You get the best of two worlds: a tough little truck that not only hauls, it wails.

It's got a proven, powerful overhead cam Mazda engine. And a butter-smooth 4-speed, all synchromesh transmission. You can drive it hard, but it's not hard to drive.

The Sport Truck tracks right through corners. It's flat handling stems from coil springs and a built-in stabilizer bar in front, 6-leaf springs in back.

A lengthy 104" wheel-base gives you some extra truck. The pick-up bed is like an open air garage... 74" long, 57" wide, 16" deep.

Fully loaded it'll deliver a 1200 pound pay-load. Anything from a dirt-riding motorcycle to ½ ton of dirt.

The Mazda Sport Truck — more rugged than a sports car, more fun than just a truck.

Distance, weight factors in Triple Bend's assault

Triple Bend begins his 1972 Hollywood Park campaign today in the $65,600 Los Angeles Handicap, and the Santa Anita Handicap winner will have to carry top weight of 123 pounds while meeting the West's finest sprinters at a distance of 1 1/4 miles.

role fell to Darby Dan Farm's Good Counsel for today's 26th running of the $83,850 Grey Lag Handicap at Aqueduct.

Frank Martino, trainer of Autobiography, decided to keep the colt out of the Grey Lag.

Fred W. Hooper's Susan's Girl withstood a closing rush by Barely Even and won the $61,375 Kentucky Oaks Friday at Churchill Downs for her sixth consecutive victory and second stakes in within six days.

The winner, ridden by Victor Tejada, covered the 1 1/4-mile distance in 1:44 1/5 and paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20 as the 1-5 favorite of a crowd of 35,522. It was the largest crowd ever to see an Oaks on the eve of the Kentucky Derby.

Barely Even returned $2.60 and $2.20 and Fairway Flyer was $3.80 to show.

A-Swoonlad, with William Della up, defeated My Good Friend and Champs Champ to win the feature race at Golden Gate Fields.

The winning time for the six furlongs was 1:11 1/5. A-Swoonlad carried 112 pounds and paid $20.60, $8.20 and $4.20.

said Laurin. "I can't speak for Arnold Whaley (trainer of Hold Your Peace), but he may have to let Hold Your Peace go out early, too."

The regular Churchill starting gate holds only 14 horses, so if all 16 go, a second gate will have to stand alongside -- and that means the No. 15 post, long-shot Big Spruce, and No. 16, No Le Haze, will be unusually far out. For No Le Haze fans, the optimistic view is that he isn't likely to get into a traffic jam.

Riva Ridge, a Kentucky-bred colt, was the top 2-year-old star of 1971 when he won seven of nine starts and earned $503,263. This year he was won three of his four starts. Regular rider Ron Turcotte is in the saddle and Laurin has given him pretty much carte blanche as to tactics.

The son of First Landing is owned by the Meadow Stable of John Tweedy, who named him, giving him the nickname of a spot in Italy where Tweedy fought with the U.S. 10th Mountain Division in World War II.

Three jockeys in the race have won the Derby before -- Don Brumfield (Kentucky) and Kauai King in 1966. Mike Mangano (Majestic Needle) on Dust Commander in 1970, and Gustavo Avila (Pacal-Lo) on Cananero last year.

chances while helping those of his rivals.
Frank McMahon's classy 4-year-old, winner of $191,000 already this year, tops a field of 10 entered in the seven-furlong Los Angeles, and among the opposition are six horses who have scored major victories at that distance.

Single Agent, beaten favorite in the opening day Premiere Handicap, is one of those half-dozen horses, and that group also includes Long Position, Fast Fellow, Diplomatic Agent and the entry of Kfar Tov and Indulto.

Kennedy Road, Miles Tyson and Fanny Viking complete the field from the Los Angeles, one of the nation's richest sprint stakes for older horses and serves as an important stepping stone to the $125,000 Californian in two weeks. If the 10-horse field remains intact, the winner will earn $38,600.

Don Pierce, who directed Triple Bend to four victories and two second-place finishes at Santa Anita, has the mount on the Never Bend colt. Although he charged from the pace to win a six-furlong event in 1:09 at the Arcadia track, Triple Bend has turned in his most important and impressive efforts at a mile and one-eighth or a mile and one-quarter.

The shortest-priced favorite of the 1972 Hollywood Park season, Glen Hill Farm's Convenience won just as such an overwhelming choice should Friday, as she coasted home three and one-quarter lengths to the good before 21,302 fans in the $15,000 Calvert Contest Purses.

With Eddie Belmonte hand-riding her the final eighth of a mile. Convenience hit the wire in 1:09 flat for six-furlongs and paid $2.60. Happening, longest shot on the board at 33-1, nosed out Generous Portion for second.

'Applause' handsome, slick, worldly wise

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

"Applause," the first show in L.A. Civic Light Opera's 35th season, is a handsome entertainment, slick and worldly wise and titillating. It opened April 25 I finally caught up with it Thursday night in the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion at the Music Center (where else?). If you loved the movie ("All About Eve," as if you need to be reminded), you'll like the musical.

But not necessarily every minute of it. There are dry stretches here, mostly in the songs and lyrics of Charles Strouse and Lee Adams, respectively and what seems to be a tight book by Comden and Green has left gaps which the composer and lyricist have filled not very substantially. Add to these some merely passable sung performances, lots of frenetic, but ultimately superficial dancing by two dozen colorfully garbed company members, and you have a fun but not deeply engaging evening.

IT COULD be shorter, obviously. "Welcome to the Theater," the Act I finale, goes on at least twice too long. "Hurry Back," a ballad for the star, would ring false even if it were more convincingly performed; Eve's soliloquy, "One Halloween," is not only dull -- it deals in pseudo-Freudianisms we hardly need more of in this year of 1972.

The four production numbers are probably necessary, in order (1) for theatergoers to feel they are getting their money's worth, and (2) for those 23 dancers and singers to justify their wages. But to tell the truth, they add no new information to the plot, they all outlast their welcome, and the only outstanding talents they reveal are those of the customer, Ray Aghayan.

All that said, the catalog of individual performances is a pleasant duty.

LAUREN BACALL overstates most of her lines, but she does have a most attractive presence, even if that presence does not spell out Middle-aged Broadway Star as clearly as we would like. And she performs in a vacuum. Her relationship with her boyfriend, and her friendship with the playwright and his wife -- these are never believably presented. We accept them good naturedly, but in the absence of genuine conviction on either side of the proscenium.

Penny Fuller is a charming and believable Eve, and the closest thing to a singer in the cast. Don Chastain is a pretty mannequin of a Bill Sampson, but he lacks the projected

U.S. 'Safari' lions go to Africa

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The last person you'd take for a lion freak is a former Madison Avenue advertising smoothy and talent agency executive who produced "Born Free."

Paul Radin now has produced a second lion picture titled "Living Free," a sequel to the adventures of Elsa and her cubs.

It's worrisome enough that Radin has blown his mind over lions, but the lengths to which he went to make the pictures are bizarre.

HE VISITED Lion Country Safari — tourist attractions — in Southern California and Florida and borrowed 24 lions to take to Africa to film "Living Free."

Why, he was asked, would a sane man take lions from the United States to Africa when traffic has been going the other way all these years?

Radin, a beefy, bluff man with a quick laugh, gave two reasons.

"First, Kenya won't let you take animals from the bush over there for any reason, nor will the country allow you to take them from private preserves which they've banned since the British left.

"Secondly, there is the problem of what to do with tame lions at the end of the film. You can't turn them loose. They'd die. And it's a shame to send them to zoos."

Radin resolved his problems by hauling the lions to Kenya, having them perform before the cameras and then returning them to the Safari joints.

"A lion will rarely attack you," he said. "But you're just as dead if they decide to play with you by grabbing the scruff of your neck and shaking you like a rag doll."

"Funny thing about the lions we took to Africa from America. We turned them loose in the bush and they had all the instincts of wild lions. They'd track, stalk, hunt and pounce, and then let their prey go free. They didn't know how to kill."

"Still I never turn my back on a lion because they're unpredictable. "When we were making

"Born Free" my coproducer, Sam Jaffe, and I were wandering around the area where we were filming and saw some lions looting toward us. Before we could get into the Land Rover they were on us.

"One of the big lions reared up and put a paw on each of my shoulders. I braced my back against the Land Rover to keep from going down. Once you're on the ground a lion will drag you around like a toy."

"WELL, THAT lion looked me square in the eye and knew every secret of my innermost soul. At that moment all he saw was sheer terror. His eyes were absolutely unreadable. But I realized he could read all about me."

"We stood frozen like that until a trainer came along and tapped him on the nose with a stick. Then he ran away."

"Living Free" will be released in the United States this summer. According to lion lover Radin it has already been released in England and is earning as much money as did "Born Free."
